

TOWN POPULATION GOES OVER 4,000

All Councillors But One Likely To Run

Next year's town council, in the absence of substantial opposition, is likely to look much like this year's council. Councillor Frank Robinson, with ten years municipal service to his credit, says he will drop out, but the rest are pretty certain to offer for election again.

Mayor Dr. S. J. Boyd has not made up his mind definitely, but chances are he will stay with the ship until she comes out upon smoother waters. It is understood that Dr. Boyd is inclined to see the water supply problem through to a finish. He stands for the Strigley well as the cheapest and best way out.

Other members of the council announced their intention at the meeting on Monday evening. Deputy-Reeve Joseph Vale: "Not reeve, deputy-reeve."

Councillor Wm. Dixon: "I don't know."

Councillor A. V. Higginson: "If I am wanted, I'll run."

Councillor George Williams: "I don't care much."

Reeve Dr. L. W. Dales: "If I can come back with you fellows, it's a pleasure. I think this is a good council. We have worked well together. We also appreciate the co-operation the press has given us."

Dr. Dales said that the council was to be congratulated on the police.

"You are wasting money sending Sloss away," said Mr. Williams. "He will be grabbed up

HOCKEY CLUB SPONSORS SELECTED AMATEUR SHOW

Under the auspices of the Newmarket hockey club an amateur show of selected prize winners will be held at the town hall on Friday evening, Dec. 10. In order to put across the best show of amateurs ever held in Newmarket, diversified artists will be brought from near and far. The services of one of radio's most popular announcers is being sought for master of ceremonies, to reserve Friday, Dec. 10 for the hockey club. Send entries to A. C. West, secretary, the Express-Herald, marked "Amateur Show."

by the county."

"He is loyal to the town," said Dr. Dales.

"What are the arrangements with regard to work during his absence?" asked Mr. Williams.

"He is available at night," replied Dr. Dales. "Mr. Hunter offered to do some of his relief work free."

"Mr. Hunter is very good," said Mr. Williams.

"We are to be congratulated on the two officers working together and co-operating," said Mr. Osborne.

"Yes, and they are satisfied," said Dr. Dales.

"There is no enthusiasm about the election," complained Mr. Dixon.

"That's because there is a good council," said Mr. Williams.

K.C., clerk and solicitor. "If there were a bad council, the people would take more interest."

The election, if any, will be held on Monday, Dec. 6, and the nominations Friday, Nov. 26.

TWO DRAMAS TO BE GIVEN BY STUDENTS

Commencement exercises at Newmarket high school on Friday evening will start at 8 o'clock sharp. As the program begins with a play, it is specially requested that everyone be in their places in good time. George D. Wark, chairman of the high school board, will preside. Principal J. B. Bastedo and his staff will be in charge of the program.

Municipalities Receive Best Deal Here - Clerk

Municipalities get a larger share of the fines imposed at the police court here than of fines imposed by the county police court in Toronto, N. L. Mathews, K.C., town clerk and solicitor, told the town council on Monday evening.

Reeve Dr. L. W. Dales raised the question as the result of criticism he had heard, he said.

"If a constable takes a case to Toronto, he gets $3.50," said Councillor George Williams. "Here he gets $1.50. Will the clerk explain?"

"I can't explain what is done in Toronto," he laughingly replied the clerk. "A lot of things are done in Toronto that I can't explain. The attorney-general's department set the amounts for the court here."

A constable's costs were a matter of mileage, said Mr. Mathews. "In the first place, the department ruled that Newmarket pay the upkeep of the court and get 30 per cent of all fines, and the province get 40 per cent," said Mr. Mathews.

"But the county of York has been in the habit in recent years of dividing its 60 per cent with the municipalities where the cases originate. But in the case of the county, the municipalities all pay the cost of that court through the county levy, but the expenses of the Newmarket court are entirely paid by Newmarket."

"However, we wanted to be fair to the municipalities and so we made an arrangement with the department," continued Mr. Mathews. "We are allowed as expenses of the court $20 a month rental for the hall, $5 a month for stationery, a salary to the clerk of the court. Of the rest of the fines the province gets 40 per cent and the other 60 per cent is divided according to where the cases originate. I can't imagine anything fairer."

"The municipalities pay part of the upkeep and so get 60 per cent at the county court in Toronto. Here they are really better treated, for they don't pay any of the costs and the province takes its 40 per cent after the expenses are paid."

The town of Newmarket doesn't handle the money at all. Magistrate Bull handles the money."

"The other fellow gets the best of the deal," remarked Councillor Arthur Evans.

"No, we get the same treatment as others, our 60 per cent share of our own fines after the expenses are paid," replied Mr. Mathews.

"The complaints I have heard are not from the municipalities, but from the officers," said Dr. Dales.

"Yes, that's right," agreed Mr. Williams.

SUPPER NETS $215

It was announced on Sunday that the hot fowl supper held at the Christian church last Wednesday cleared $215. This was very gratifying and the minister, Rev. Mr. Magwood, thanked all those who had helped to make the supper a success. Over 600 suppers were served.

ONCE A WEEK FOR GARBAGE IS CONSIDERED

Inquiries about Aurora's garbage removal system were made by the municipal garbage removal committee, Councillor Arthur Evans told the town council on Monday evening.

"In Aurora you must take the containers to the sidewalk and they are taken away the same day," Mr. Evans said.

"They won't take away the limb of a tree or anything like that in Aurora," said Councillor W. W. Osborne.

"No, the garbage must go in a reasonable container," said Mr. Evans. "It is removed once a week."

"Why once a week?" asked N. L. Mathews, K.C., clerk and solicitor. "It is twice now."

"That's what they do in Aurora," said Mr. Evans. "This is just a report."

"We are not making any recommendations," said Deputy-Reeve Joseph Vale.

"I suggest that we let the contractor by tender and leave it to the next council," said Mr. Evans.

"It will be late if brought in next year," said Mr. Mathews. "It is not budgeted for this year," said Mr. Evans.

"This council should pass a by-law," said Reeve Dr. L. W. Dales. "This is a progressive step. I hope we don't get cold on it."

"I'll prepare a by-law if you instruct me," said Mr. Mathews. "Settle the details. For instance, is it to be once or twice a week?"

The matter was referred to the special committee for recommendations.

Assessor's Estimate Sets Population High

Newmarket's population has jumped to 4,231, according to the assessor's figures, N. L. Mathews, K.C., clerk and solicitor, reported to the town council on Monday evening.

"I think the explanation is this, that previous assessors didn't include young people over school age, but not 21 years old," said Mr. Mathews. "I was wondering why the population was shrinking, although there seemed to be more people in town."

Mr. Mathews said that 4,231 didn't represent the population correctly, however, because it included estates and other duplications on the voters' list.

Tribute was paid to the work of B. W. Hunter, assessor, by Councillor A. V. Higginson, Reeve Dr. L. W. Dales and other members of the council.

"There were only seven appeals from the assessment and only three appeals allowed," said Mr. Higginson.

Editor and Proprietor
142 Main St., Newmarket

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 18TH, 1937

A MATTER OF PRECEDENCE

The market question came before the town council on Monday evening. The question is whether the wholesalers or the citizenry should have first chance to buy fowl. A by-law provides that the wholesalers must not buy until 9 a.m., but the farmers, it is said, if this by-law is enforced, will not sell to private individuals until after the "buyers" have had their pick. It was said at the council meeting that the "buyers" will not purchase a lot of chickens from which two or three birds have been sold.

Autocrats of the Market-Place

It would seem that these wholesalers are rather autocratic, if these things be true. It was said further that if the by-law were enforced, the market would soon die out. The question naturally arises whether the market is for the benefit of citizens or of wholesalers. The citizens own the market building. It was said at the council meeting that if citizens were not to get a chance to buy, the market might as well be closed. But is the market primarily for the direct benefit of citizens or is it primarily for the benefit of farmers, on whose prosperity the town's welfare is partly dependent? It is to be hoped that it may be possible to satisfy both private citizens and wholesale purchasers, but if it isn't, we feel that whatever action is taken should hold the farmers' interests uppermost.

HOW OLD IS AN EDITOR

The Fergus News-Record is distinguished for its full page of editorial comment, although the editor is "in the know," to use one of his own phrases, so often that his editorials sometimes border on and even become news. The News-Record last week commented, with regard to the death of Ralph Connor, that "it isn't hard to guess the age of the editor by the names of the books he remembers best."

"Elementary, Dr. Watson!"

The argument is interesting. "Ralph Connor wrote over a long period of years, but it seems that many busy people do most of their reading about the time they are in the upper forms of the high school, and books read then are long remembered. If anyone recalls 'Black Rock' and 'The Sky Pilot,' he probably is quite a bit older than the one who speaks of Ralph Connor's books, 'Corporal Cameron,' and 'Patrol of the Sun Dance Trail.'" As The Era was one of the newspapers which chose to refer to Corporal Cameron and Patrol of the Sun Dance Trail, it seems that this editorial writer's age has been revealed beyond recall. It so happens that he read Black Rock and The Foreigner at about the same time, but they were in the nature of what the theatres now call "revivals" and the other two novels came first. But even this writer could not say when Corporal Cameron and the Patrol of the Sun Dance Trail were published, and if he were dependent on this means of knowing his age he would be, without research, as much at a loss as those old people who from time to time write to The Era for some record of their birthday.

Curriculum Changes

It probably is true that the average person reads more during his high school years than in later years, although the high school curriculum of today may not allow quite so much time for reading love stories as did the curriculum of Black Rock or even Sun Dance Trail days. Whether that is a change for the better or not is now beginning to be doubted by departments of education. Certainly, high school minds are impressionable and the better stuff we can fill our minds with at this time, the richer we will be as the years go by. We forget the books we read last year or last week, but we remember the books we read when we were eye-high to a bookshelf.

WHY DO WE DO IT

Arising out of the preceding article, the question arises: Why do we conceal our ages? When we die our age is blazoned out in the newspaper, and engraved on memorial stones. It is written, not that we died in our beds, or in our street clothes, but that we died in our 80th year. Our first birthday is likewise recorded in the public press. During the years, however, that we are in a position to control publication of our age, most of us are very secretive. Women are supposed to be more secretive about their ages and are credited with the desire to be thought young rather than old. Men, on the other hand, usually wish to be thought older than they are, so that they may get into the army (before poison gas was invented), have a vote, get a better job, hold a position of responsibility. Of course, they get to a point where to advertise their age too much may be to court loss of a position to make way for younger men, but "pensions at 60," when and if attractive, may change the tendency even here. When they get to 75 or 80, they are pleased to be thought younger, but are proud to tell you that they are ten years older than your guess.

MAIN ST.

When a car or truck, unable to find parking space on Main St., stops in one of the two centre lanes (or should we say "alleyways," to describe their width more accurately) and two other vehicles approach the remaining lane from opposite directions, the result may be described as a traffic tie-up. There was such a traffic tie-up on Saturday morning (in another article in these columns, we speak of news creeping into editorial columns, but a Main St. traffic tie-up lacks one of the most important news ingredients). We may think of our Main St. traffic problem as too difficult for solution, but it is nothing in comparison with the traffic problems of Toronto. Toronto folks waste hours and hours every week waiting in street-cars and motor-cars at intersections at the rush hours, just because the people of Toronto, 20, or even ten years ago, did not have sufficient foresight. Toronto is so far behind with the solution of her increasing traffic problems that we wonder whether, short of new means of travel such as underground or by air, she will ever catch up.

New Streets

The ideal solution of Newmarket's Main St. traffic problem would be the widening of the thoroughfare, but possibly that is not to be in any substantial way. Minor widening, by removing power and telephone poles, and cutting down the sidewalks seems likely, but the promised by-law of a few months ago, setting new building frontage lines for Main St., seems to have been dropped. There may be a solution for the problem in the opening up of new thoroughfares east and west of Main St., making use of the old radial right-of-way on the west and widening and continuing, both north and south, Cedar St. on the east. Two good streets close to Main St. would provide additional parking places, keep the through traffic close to the business section and provide greater convenience and accommodation for shoppers. Shoppers wouldn't come into our stores if there were no room for them. They won't come into our business section if there is no room for their cars.

OLD-FASHIONED

There is so much in common between the people of Canada and the United States, and so little separating them, that it seems not unreasonable to suppose that some day, either through a closer association between the British Commonwealth of Nations and the United States of America or through closer association of all nations, Canada and the United States will be a single political and economic unit. Some people will think otherwise. It seems to us that among the principal obstacles in the way of such a union is what seems to be a different moral standard in the U.S. We do not mean that the morals of the United States are inferior to ours, but they are certainly different. Crime, racketeering and political dishonesty flourish to a much greater extent than in Canada. Reno and Hollywood also represent standards very different from our own. Last week we read in the press of Mrs. So-and-So No. 4, fresh from Reno, who refused a Hollywood contract because she had been so well provided for by her ex-husband, a connoisseur of blondes. She still liked him, but no longer felt a great love for him. Mr. So-and-So will no doubt soon be entering upon his fifth marriage, but we shouldn't call it marriage, for there is no intention of permanence on his part. Our Canadian law would regard such a man as a bigamist, in other words, a criminal. The law of some of the states of the United States, it should be added, would also regard him as a bigamist. Of course, those Canadians and Americans who enter marriage with the idea that it is a life contract may be old-fashioned, and the Reno folks may be leading the way, but we wonder which group of people are happier. The same newspaper which told of Ex-Wife No. 4 told also of a couple at Bloomfield, Ont., who have been wed for 75 years (to each other) and are still hale, hearty and happy.

PIRATES AND SUCH

The two authors, as they are being called, of the new elementary school curriculum, are being invited by teachers to explain themselves and their ideas. Last week we discussed some of the suggestions made by one of them to Durham and Northumberland teachers at Bowmanville. Since then, the other member of the team, Thornton Mustard, who is said to be in charge of the development and revision of the new course of study, has been telling York teachers all about it at Aurora. His story seems to be that it is no use forcing a child to study what he is not interested in. He said that any red-blooded boy regards Wordsworth's "Daffodils" as "so much mush." "He wants to hear about pirates and ships and such things." While much that Mr. Mustard has to say appeals to us, we see danger of someone replying, "so much Mustard," if he tries to argue that most boys will not enjoy the rhythm and suggestiveness of this lovely poem.

I wandered lonely as a cloud
That floats on high o'er vales and hills,
When all at once I saw a crowd,
A host, of golden daffodils;
Beside the lake, beneath the trees,
Fluttering and dancing in the breeze.

Continuous as the stars that shine
And twinkle on the milky way,
They stretched in never-ending line
Along the margin of a bay:
Ten thousand saw I at a glance,
Tossing their heads in sprightly dance.

The waves beside them danced; but they
Out-did the sparkling waves in glee:
A poet could not but be gay,
In such a jocund company:
I gazed—and gazed—but little thought
What wealth the show to me had brought:

For oft, when on my couch I lie
In vacant or in pensive mood,
They flash upon that inward eye
Which is the bliss of solitude;
And then my heart with pleasure fills,
And dances with the daffodils.

Money Well Spent

We thoroughly agree with Mr. Mustard when he says: "It is our job to find the thing he enjoys most and does best, and allow him to develop his natural ability in a socially acceptable way." Carrying out such a policy, we would think, would necessitate more teachers and more class-rooms, study rooms, libraries, laboratories and workshops in our schools. If we have money to spend, there is no better way for us to spend it.

TAXATION FOR MUSIC

Bowmanville citizens are likely to be asked to vote on a proposal that the town should collect by way of taxation enough money to support the town band. The Canadian Statesman puts the necessary amount at $1,200 a year, or, it says, half a mill on the tax rate. In Newmarket this would also be half a mill on the tax rate, but Newmarket has or soon will have, not one band, but three bands and the council is not likely to select one of them to be supported by taxation.

CENTRAL HIGHWAY

Highway petitions are supposed to be in circulation about town and district. This job is being done with enthusiasm but not systematically. We believe that the business men of this town would be glad to give sufficient money to pay a canvasser to take these petitions to every home, office and factory to obtain the signature of every citizen, male and female. Just where the petitions are now, we don't know, but perhaps it is not too late to be a little more systematic. We can't see Mr. Hepburn taking over the last link in the Orangeville to Peterboro highway if he should get the idea that our women folks are not in favor of it.

Mr. John Barry, who came up from Toronto to attend the funeral of the late John Hanrahan, is a son of the late John Barry of this town, and was one of the residents of 40 years ago. It is 30 years since Mr. Barry went to Toronto and he has worked for the same firm ever since.
A wire on Sunday from Prof. W. E. Jackson allayed all fears as to his safety. The message was sent from Saure Point on the Labrador coast. He was still on the "The Arctic" and expected to reach Quebec in about one week.
All on board were well. Yesterday morning a letter arrived from him, written at Port Burwell on the Hudson Strait, in which he says they have had exceptionally good weather all summer and fall. First snow flurry was on Sept. 11 and a good deal of snow since then.

At noon on Tuesday seven-year-old Michael Cassidy of Cobalt had been without food for 24 hours, as he wandered through the dense northwestern Ontario bush. More than 300 men were searching for him.

Premier M. F. Hepburn, while on his way to Sault Ste. Marie, where a banquet was tendered him on Tuesday, enjoyed some hunting and shot a fine deer.

Cuba's chief envoy to the Royal Winter Fair, Major Bernardo Luna, was a little bewildered, he said on Wednesday, over finding himself in a country "where so many blondes." "It is so strange," he laughed.

Canada will not anticipate anti-Japanese sanctions by the nine-power conference, by any system of embargoes, it was authoritatively stated in the capital city on Tuesday.

It was announced in Brampton on Tuesday that the reward for information leading to the arrest of the person or persons responsible for the theft of the body of Hayden Pope from its Streetsville grave last month reached a total of $500, when Peel County Council added $100 to the $400 already offered by Streetsville and the provincial government.

W. M. S. Apollo, of the British West Indies squadron, on Tuesday ordered the body of Harry McDonald to England for burial. The statesman was en route to South America on a trip he hoped would revive his failing health, when he passed away last week.

Cheery Sees A Ghost

BY RUTH DINGMAN HEBB

"Oh, my cat and feathers," panted little Cheery Chickadee, as she lighted on a hemlock tree branch beside her mother. "I don't know when I've had such a scare. I'm all of a flutter."

"Why, child?" exclaimed Cora. "What in the world is the matter? You're as white as a sheet."

"Oh, oh, don't say that—that was the whole trouble," Cheery wailed.

"Why, I don't understand," said the bewildered Cora. "What you said doesn't seem to make sense at all."

"Oh, yes it does," contradicted Cheery. "Sheet reminds me of ghosts, and that is what I saw."

"What?" said Cora in amazement. "You saw ghosts. Why, that's ridiculous."

"Well, I just saw one," admitted Cheery, "but it must have been a ghost."

"Was it the ghost of a human being or what?" inquired Cora.

"Oh, no," said Cheery. "It was a bird ghost, and white."

"Why, it was a gull of course," decided Cora, in a relieved tone. "I thought you knew a gull when you saw one."

"Mother, I do," Cheery answered indignantly. "I'm not as ignorant as that. Certainly I know what a gull looks like. This ghost was with a flock of those pretty cedar waxwings, and looked exactly like them in shape, size, crest, and everything, except that it was all white, a kind of dull white color."

"It seemed to be hanging around with the waxwings, just like one of them and they didn't seem to be at all afraid of it, and just treated it as one of themselves," she added.

"Why, you poor child," exclaimed Cora, who at last understood what Cheery had seen. "That bird was one of them and wasn't a ghost any more than you and I are. That was an albino cedar waxwing."

"What's that?" asked Cheery.

"An albino is an animal that hasn't any pigment, or color, like the other animals have," Cora explained. "An albino occurs very rarely. Any bird might be an albino, and there are human albinos, too. But we very rarely see one and I can quite understand how it might frighten you."

"Well, it certainly did," said Cheery, "and I'm awfully glad to know that it wasn't a ghost."

"I'd like to see it," said Cora.

"I'm sure you are, Mr. Waxwing," said Cora. "That's your name, isn't it?"

"Yes, that's who I am," said the waxwing. "And I must admit that my own relatives have called me 'Old Uncle Palefeathers.'"

"Well, we're certainly glad to have met you, Mr. Palefeathers, and I see no reason why you shouldn't feel proud of your unusual appearance," Cora said, and she and Cheery flew back to tell the other chums about the strange bird that they had seen.

The Common Round

By Isabel Inglis Colville

Twenty-Two Years Ago

"My mind is made up," announced I, one morning, twenty-two years ago, as I rushed into the room where mother sat peacefully knitting war socks.

"Made up about what?" queried mother, feeling bewildered, as she well might, for only half an hour before, I had gone out shopping, as sane as usual.

"We're going to Bermuda, to be there much longer with Archie."

"Do you really mean it—how do we go and when, if it's really going?" said my respected parent, with an acceptance of the situation beautiful to see—"but what will you do with your pupils?"

"I just met Margaret M. and she wants to begin teaching again, and said she'd take part of them, anyway," I informed her, "and now," I went on, "I'm off to see the ticket man."

Leaving mother looking as if her world had undergone a sudden upheaval, I hid me to the ticket office, and found we could sail from New York, on the "Bermuda" on Nov. 19.

Better get your stationer now, the centre of the ship—not so much motion there," said the friendly creature as we looked at folders.

Thinking it well not to dwell too much on the thought of the motion, I went triumphantly home, and reported my success.

"Well, I hope we'll manage all right," said mother, somewhat pessimistically.

"Why?" I asked.

"You know as well as I, that neither of us is used to travelling alone; when your father was alive he looked after everything—then Archie did it," said my parent.

"So what?" I wanted to know.

"That remains to be seen," went on the mother, "but I wouldn't in the least surprise me if we landed in Honolulu or Trinidad, if you are responsible."

"Wait and see," said I with dignity.

In the ensuing days, I often privately wondered if she could possibly be right, but at last the day before our departure came, and with a friend I took our trunks over on the ferry to have them pass the customs and send them on their way. I felt like weeping as our carefully strapped and packed trunks were opened and a large, competent hand poked here, and lifted there, and I felt that I'd never be able to find one single thing where I expected to find it.

However, the ordeal over, we went home and a steadily growing worse, sore throat, made me wait for nothing so much, as a nice warm bed, and a mustard blister.

"Was this," thought I, "the way to start on a journey?" and I was just about to apply the muslard without and hot lemonade within, when a ring came to the door, and there stood a group of friends, laden with gifts for the soldier man of the family, and so, trying to forget I had a throat, I sat and tried to look as cheerful as I should have felt.

Presently the conversation turned to sea-sickness and "why, oh why did they choose this topic of conversation?" thought I to myself, as one part of my brain helped me to reply to questions and express thanks and the other half tried to imagine where we'd put these additions to our luggage, and both parts warned me that if the conversation didn't change, I'd have as good or bad—how you look at it—attack of sea-sickness, right at the moment, as I might have later on.

"When I went over to England two years ago," said one girl, "I lived on dry biscuits and ginger."

"Well," said another, "when Jack and I went to Bermuda some time ago, we found that we were all right if we kept in the open air, and walked a lot."

"That might be all right for you," said the youngest member of the party, "but when I went over to school, I just went to bed, whenever I got on board, and never stirred till we docked."

"Worcester sauce is the thing," said a voice with authority, like "father says there's nothing like it; just take a teaspoonful when you begin to feel queasy."

By this time, I was on the verge of collapse; the room seemed to be heaving and swaying, and the familiar faces to look dim.

Just then, one of the party gave me a good look and said, "Think Isabel is pretty tired and we'd better be off." Much as I love my friends, there are times when "good-bye" is the sweetest thing they can say—this was one of the few, and as I closed the door, I thought—"now I can be just as miserable as I like."

When mother looked at my face, which must have resembled a dying cat, she said, despairingly, "If you'll take this tonight, which will you be like tomorrow?"

"Tomorrow will have to take care of itself," said I, as I took a teaspoonful of Worcester sauce and mixed a mustard plaster.

"There's one thing, I can't be much worse"—and now—until next week—

TEACHING THE TEACHERS

Males were in the minority when I entered the familiar auditorium of Aurora high school on Friday morning. And when Inspector R. H. Roberts set out to explain our approach to education by comparison with the approach of a lady buying a hat, I began to think that this was going to be pretty much of a "hen party." Indeed, I sometimes wonder if the lack of masculine mental aggression in rural Ontario may be partially traceable to the influences of so many young girls supplying the inspiration for our little red schoolhouses.

But the teachers' convention which now appears under the name of "Teachers' Institute," was no hen party; far from it. In the course of a well planned program, the teachers received an interesting exposition of the new curriculum and a stirring challenge to make it work or to help adapt it so that it will work. When Chief Inspector V. K. Greer spoke I was much encouraged; but when I sat for a long while listening to Thornton Mustard, I was becoming enthralled. I said to myself, "anything so alive and sane and progressive could come from a government official in the whole country. This man, who was largely instrumental in shaping the new course of studies, should be kept going about the province. And his time should not be confined to the teachers; he should be turned loose on the parents and general citizenry."

While one must not omit the fact that the exhibits of work by an Aurora public school and by the public schools of "hitchhick" township were prepared for this

Sauer Kraut

BY DELPHINIUM

As I handled nearly a thousand cabbages from field and garden, I thought of sauer kraut, and wished someone might want a hundred or two cabbage heads wherewith to make this delectable food.

My first introduction to sauer kraut was in reading a lesson in our old third or fourth school reader, of say 50 years ago—endowed with the Emperor and the Major. The major in full uniform, very pompously spoke to a fellow officer in plain clothes—his emperor, though unrecognized by the major, asking "Guess what I had for breakfast this morning," to which the emperor replied, "Sauer kraut and a cup of coffee?"

"Better than that!" replied the major.

The meaning of sauer kraut was given as pickled cabbage which has become sour. To me, that seemed no breakfast at all, and conveyed little meaning. The teacher probably knew no more than that about it, as he did not enlighten us further.

Long years after I viewed the process. It was on a farm one autumn evening. There were two farms in the family, one house being unoccupied. The cabbage were trimmed here. The root-pulper had been thoroughly cleaned, with the knives arranged for cutting. A tub was placed under the pulper to receive the cut cabbage.

Cabbage was fed to the pulper, the hands turned, and presently the shredded cabbage filled the tub and was emptied into a huge barrel, salt liberally scattered over it, and a huge pounder thumped over it. When the barrel was nearly full of juicy salted cabbage, the juice over the top of the slaw. The barrel was later taken to the farmhouse, and kept in the warm kitchen till it soured.

Evidently it was good, for on a later visit I noticed every time the man of the house, a middle-aged, bearded farmer, passed that barrel, his fingers went in and fished out a dainty bit which he ate with relish.

It was in Markham, I learned, among the Dutch, where I tasted and liked this kraut. Now, I had been teaching and sauer kraut was mentioned in the lesson, the whole process of making it would be explained and possibly a can of sauer kraut would be purchased and given for lunch to the pupils.

Sauer kraut may be made in smaller quantities than in a huge barrel. I may try a large crock of it some day, being disgusted by people who cannot eat things. The juice is a good stomach comforter and is really a healthy product. Should Newmarket readers of this article desire to see the process or try the product, ask Mrs. Wellington Trivels of Andrew St. to explain, show the board fitted with a long knife for the cutting, and buy, beg or borrow a gallon or two of her sauer kraut or order a supply if you cannot do this, buy a can of it at your grocer's, get the kraut half, and buy a hundred or two cabbages from me and go into the manufacturing business.

Ten-year-old Howie Morenz of Montreal, son of the late hockey star of the same name, is escorted to and from school every morning by a police car, since his mother started to receive threats that the boy would be kidnapped, over a month ago. Mrs. Morenz said that the threats started on Oct. 2 after a benefit hockey game was held which raised a memorial fund of $25,000 for the widow and the family.

TO THE EDITOR

Editor, The Era: The following cable has just been received from London, signed by Capt. Geo. F. Gracey, general secretary of the British Save the Children Fund:

"Lord mayor London and Chinese ambassador both have written urgent appeal to Save Children Fund throughout British Commonwealth supporting its campaign on behalf children of China suffering irreparable horrors of war. Funds for relief urgently needed. Canada nobly have you responded in past. Help us in this new call to neighbor service. Please broadcast, Gracey."

Previous reports we have received tend to show "that the sufferings of China's children are at least as terrible as anything we have experienced in other fields of work. Not only is there the horror of slaughter and maiming by aerial bombardment, and the destruction of thousands of homes, but all this has come on top of such penury among the masses of the people as is hardly credible to western understanding."

In appealing for these child victims of war in China, the Canadian Save the Children Fund is being assisted by the Canadian Friends Service Committee. The relief work of the Society of Friends has always been notable and the Save the Children Fund has, during the past 18 years, carried out relief for millions of children in time of war and of famine in many lands.

The joint committee, through its chairman, Prof. N. A. M. MacKenzie, ventures to ask you to lay this urgent need before your readers. Many of them will be glad to know that this effort for Chinese relief is being made in Canada—and some of them may wish to help. All contributions will go entirely for relief, as expenses are cared for by special donations. Funds should be made payable and sent to R. J. Dillworth, honorary treasurer, 888 Huron St., Toronto.

Faithfully yours,
ANNIE L. YRIGH,
Secretary.

Speaks on Swedish CO-OPERATIVE MOVEMENT

John Roberts of Toronto spoke to the Friends' Christian Endeavour on Monday evening. His subject was "Co-operation." Since the C.E. group had studied Marcus W. Child's book, "Sweden, the Middle Way," Mr. Roberts dealt with co-operation in Sweden, chiefly.

The speaker was born in the county in England where the model co-operative movement began. He pointed out that the co-operative movements in Sweden and England differ in their origin. In Sweden, people interested in this problem began factories in order to crush monopolies already existing. They built a factory for manufacturing rubber and were soon doing so well that they began producing automobile tires, too. If Mr. Roberts wrote a book on this movement in Sweden, he would entitle it "And so they started a factory," he said.

Mr. Roberts pointed out that such a movement could be started in Canada, as well as Sweden, although any new worthwhile project is usually ridiculed.

Kenneth Munro of Toronto was chairman. A splendid meeting has been planned for next Monday evening.

BELHAVEN INSTITUTE PLANS NURSING COURSE

A series of lectures is being conducted by the Belhaven Women's Institute. On Tuesday of last week a splendid lecture on the care of the teeth was given by Dr. Leary of Sutton, and this Monday, Miss Robertson, noted dietitian of the Red Cross Society, gave an illustrated talk on "How to improve the health through proper diet." These lectures were very instructive and much appreciated.

Miss Henderson, Red Cross supervisor of home nursing, gave a history of the organization and an interesting report of the work being accomplished in their outposts hospitals of northern Ontario. She later organized a class in home nursing, in which 25 members enrolled.

On Monday and Thursday evenings at 7.30, the Belhaven Women's Institute will conduct Red Cross home nursing classes at the community hall. This course consists of 12 lessons of one hour each, for the purpose of teaching women and girls to take better care of their own health and that of the family in the home; to recognize symptoms, call the doctor early, carry out his instructions intelligently and so try to prevent more serious illness developing.

The lessons are demonstrations by a graduate nurse, followed by practice by the students. After the first eight classes, there are three lessons by doctors and one by a dietitian.

The Women's Institute would be glad to have any women interested join them in this important study for better health in the community.

Elmhurst Beach

Mrs. Fred Lockerie visited her mother in Toronto for a few days last week.

Mr. L. B. Pollock has taken one of his foxes to the Royal Winter Fair. The community centre has every success.

Mr. and Mrs. Coulson Cameron visited friends in Wingham, Ont., last week.

Miss Mudge Glover is visiting friends in Toronto this week and taking in the winter fair while there.

Mrs. Wesley Hayes' father, brother, wife and three children, are visiting her from the west for awhile.

Little Gordon Clarke is sick with pneumonia, but everyone hopes he will make a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Johnston from Toronto visited Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hirst last week.

The sympathy of the community is extended to Mrs. Ralph Draper in the loss of her brother, Mr. Robert Rye.

Keswick

The services at the United church on Sunday were presided over by the pastor, Rev. C. E. Fockler, who preached at both services. During the morning service Kenneth Morton delighted the congregation with a truly lovely solo, beautifully sung. Lantern slides of hymns and pictures were the feature of the evening service.

The following meetings are to be held this week: Sunday-school convention at Queensville on Thursday afternoon and evening; mission band at 4.15 on Friday; communicants' class at 7.30 on Friday evening, followed by Y. P. S. at 8 o'clock.

On Sunday evening, Nov. 28, Miss Duff, field secretary of the W. M. S. will be guest speaker at the Young People's service. The monthly meeting of the W. M. S. was held last Wednesday. Mrs. Charles Willoughby, third vice-president, presided. Those in attendance greatly enjoyed the program for the afternoon. During the business period the president, Mrs. Vaughan, presided, and as the next meeting, which will be held on Thursday, Dec. 10, will be the annual meeting, with election of officers, etc., a nominating committee was appointed—those ladies being, Mrs. R. Switzer, Mrs. O. King, and Mrs. E. Morton.

The study book for the year, "A New Church Faces a New World," is being studied by groups. The first chapter, discussed by Mrs. Frank Marritt and her group, Mrs. Hillborn, Mrs. John Morton, Mrs. Fockler, Mrs. R. Fisher, and Mrs. Kelling, was most interesting, each member of the group being remarkably well. It is felt that the members will in this way derive much benefit from the book, and a hearty invitation is extended to all who are interested in the work of the church to attend these meetings the second Thursday of each month and thus share in the enjoyment of this very worthwhile study.

In concluding the meeting Mrs. Willoughby read a very splendid poem.

There were lovely roses on the table, brought in by Mrs. Fockler. Rev. and Mrs. Fockler had on Nov. 9 celebrated their wedding anniversary.

As Rev. Mr. Fockler expects to have a baptismal service for children some Sunday morning in the very near future anyone desiring information about the same is asked to please enquire of him.

The Elmhurst Women's Institute are holding their November meeting at the Roche's Point hall on Thursday, Nov. 25, instead of Nov. 24, the date being changed owing to a church wedding on Nov. 24. Mrs. Wallich will be hostess. Roll call; something you are thankful for; paper, world peace, Mrs. Doyle; program, contest, recitation by Miss E. Young, reading, Mrs. J. Cole; refreshment committee, Mrs. Pedlar, Mrs. J. E. Baines, Mrs. English, Mrs. F. Marritt, Mrs. C. Willoughby, Mrs. C. Cameron.

Mrs. J. E. Baines will attend the Women's Institute convention at the Royal York hotel, Toronto, the end of this week, as delegate from Elmhurst Institute.

HOLT

HUNTERS OBSERVE ARMISTICE SILENCE

Two minute silence was observed here by the Toronto and North York Hunt Club on Thursday, Nov. 11. It was a beautiful picture, which drew farmers and villagers from far and near.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Sam Cupples was held on Tuesday afternoon at her home. Interment was made in Mount Albert cemetery. Deepest sympathy is extended to the bereaved family.

Rev. and Mrs. Casement of Newmarket, Miss Evelyn Crowder and Mrs. Mary Crowder, had tea with Mr. and Mrs. Ross Thompson on Thursday last.

Miss Hattie Mitchell spent a few days last week with Mrs. Herbert Oliver of Vander.

Miss Pauline Sinclair spent Thursday last week with Miss Beatrice Gibney.

Mrs. M. J. Brubacher is visiting at the home of her mother, Mrs. Shultz, in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Couch and sons spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wildfield.

Mr. and Mrs. James Gibney of Newmarket were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Gibney on Sunday.

Mrs. Bambridge and Mrs. Wm. Stickwood spent Friday with Miss Maud Knott.

Mrs. Fred Coates and Miss Mina Coates are recovering from an attack of tonsillitis.

Mr. Lorne Rutledge is ill with quinsy.

SUTTON

WOULD TAX DOGS FOR POULTRY, TOO

A protest which was submitted by a prominent Georgina township farmer led Reeve Harry Corner to promise action when the session of the York county council begins next Monday. The complaint arose out of the destruction of some 70 turkeys by dogs from Sutton.

The suggestion put forth was to put an additional tax on dogs to pay poultry breeders' claims in a manner similar to that in which claims for sheep are paid, that is, to pay the cost of the revenue obtained from the dog license. In this way the farmers would be reimbursed partially, at least, for their losses. This practice, of course, would only apply to sections of the township or county where the raising of poultry is a principal part of farming.

POLICE COURT DIDN'T KNOW BASS WHEN HE SAW ONE

Convicted of buying netted trout, bass and whitefish, Fred Tansley, Toronto, was fined $10 and costs in police court on Tuesday morning.

Game Warden Frank Lyons of Sutton gave evidence that he had found the fish in Tansley's car.

"I didn't know a bass from any other kind of fish," Mr. Tansley said in the course of his evidence.

"I took a lady to Toronto the night before the election at the request of an Indian, and he said he would give me some fish," said Mr. Tansley. "I said I would pay him for the fish. I forgot his name."

Then he went fishing another day, taking a friend, Mike Morrison, with him. "It was rough and we didn't get anything," he said. "The Indian put the fish in the back of my car. I paid him partly for them."

"We were going home when this gentleman," referring to Mr. Lyons, "stopped me and asked if we had any fish. He asked if he could look at them. 'You've got netted fish,' he said."

"What's the matter? Are they rotten?" I said. He said, 'No, they are perfectly good. They are netted.'"

"You have done quite a bit of fishing?" asked N. L. Mathews, K.C., crown counsel.

"No, I haven't fished for 15 years," said Mr. Tansley.

"Did you ever catch a perch?" "Yes."

"Did you ever catch a bass?" "No, except last August, I caught one."

"Then why did you say you didn't know a bass when you saw one?" "Well, I don't. They told me it was a bass. All the fishing I did before was in Toronto bay."

"My client went up to Snake Island fishing, without any intention of committing an offence," said P. J. McKeefry, Toronto, counsel for Mr. Tansley.

A charge of speeding against Miller Sedore, Keswick, was withdrawn when it was explained that he was taking a sick person to a doctor.

"On Sunday the car was going 45 miles an hour on Eagle St.," said Constable Kenneth Mount. "The accused told me he was taking a sick party to the doctor. I verified this with the doctor and found it to be true."

Clarence Campbell was fined $10 and costs for speeding 45 miles an hour on Eagle St. The charge was laid by Constable James Siores.

George Good, Toronto, for driving 43 miles an hour on Eagle St. was fined $8 and costs. Robert Nelson, Toronto, for driving 43 miles an hour on Eagle St., was fined $8 and costs. Both charges were laid by Constable Mount.

A charge against Stanley Terry, King township farmer, for non-payment of wages, was dismissed, on payment of wages due. Mr. Terry said that the complainant, Nicholas Nichols, had refused to take the money when offered to him previously.

Mr. Terry also brought witnesses to refute Mr. Nichols' story that the food was poor, but the court was not interested in this side of the question and the witnesses were not heard.

"I was engaged from July until next April and I was to receive board and $150," said Mr. Nichols. "How long did you work there?" asked Mr. Mathews.

"Three and a half months," said Nichols.

"Why did you stop?" "No board. He wanted to fight every night."

"What was the trouble with the food?" "Dry bread and potatoes."

"Did the family eat the same food?" "Yes."

"Did he pay you anything?" "Thirty dollars."

"Why did you quit?" "He told me to get off the place or he'll kill me. I can't work there. No board. Long hours."

"How long?" "Eighteen hours a day."

"Did he expect you to work that long?" "Yes."

"I never said I would kill him," said Mr. Terry. "When he left I offered to pay him $22 a month and he refused. He came back and asked for $20 a month. I said all right, I would go to the bank in Aurora in the morning and get the money. He said he wanted it right away. He went away and never came back."

"What about the board?" "He got meat, vegetables and there was always dessert."

"What about the hours?" "I got up at 5.30. I told him he didn't need to get up before me. But he was always up when I got up."

"How long did you work?" "We quit in the fields at 5.30 p.m. Once in a while it was a little later."

"Did you ever work after that?" "We still had the chores."

"Isn't $22 rather low?" asked Mr. Mathews.

"No, it is what is going. That's all experienced men get."

"Then it's no wonder men don't like working on the farms," commented Mr. Mathews.

"It's all we get," was Mr. Terry's reply.

Mr. Terry asked an opportunity to call witnesses with regard to the quality of food at his home.

"I don't like stories like that going about," Mr. Terry said. Represented by Archibald Armstrong, barrister, John Dilleher, R.R. 2, Newmarket, pleaded not guilty to a reckless driving charge.

"On Oct. 29 I was called to an accident one mile north of Aurora," said Provincial Constable Howard Jackman. "The guard rails were knocked down. The car had been driven with a child in the front seat with him. He said the child went asleep."

"He turned to lay the child down and the car went off the pavement."

"What was the damage?" asked Mr. Mathews.

"Not much to the car. About $15 to the guard rails. No one was hurt."

Mr. Armstrong said that what Mr. Dilleher had said to the constable could not be used against him and that the court had no evidence on which to convict him. He said that the constable should have warned him before taking his statement.

"This is not a criminal charge," said Mr. Mathews.

"He turned to lay the child down and the car went off the pavement."

"What was the damage?" asked Mr. Mathews.

"Not much to the car. About $15 to the guard rails. No one was hurt."

Mr. Armstrong said that what Mr. Dilleher had said to the constable could not be used against him and that the court had no evidence on which to convict him. He said that the constable should have warned him before taking his statement.

"This is not a criminal charge," said Mr. Mathews.

Orange Pekoe Blend "SALADA" TEA

Magistrate L. J. C. Bull entered a conviction.

"There is a previous conviction for reckless driving last summer," said Mr. Mathews. "The man is quite honest. There is no suggestion of liquor. He just seems to be a bad driver. He might have hit a pedestrian. I would suggest that his permit be cancelled for 30 days, and that it not be granted again until he has taken out insurance or furnished evidence of financial responsibility."

"Ten dollars and costs, and permit cancelled for 30 days," said the magistrate.

"What about the other suggestion?" asked Mr. Mathews.

"The department will take care of that," said the magistrate.

A charge of reckless driving against Harry Hayward was heard.

"There were four riding in a coupe," said Provincial Constable Jackman. "I stopped the car. They said they were from Camp Borden. They were all going to the same point in Toronto. The driver said he was going to let one of his passengers out at the city limits because he knew it was against the law to drive that way in the city."

"Was it interfering with the driving?" asked the magistrate.

"It was necessary to put the gear shift into one of the forward positions for one man to get out of the car. The rear-view mirror was of no use to the driver."

Mr. Hayward was fined $10 and costs.

"I would like to ask a remand for a month," said Campbell Line, Richmond Hill, for David Lackey, charged with false pretences. "He has just finished serving 30 days, and there are other cases besides this one for him to get straightened up. The root of the whole trouble is that he lost $8,500 on a potato deal last spring."

Mr. Lackey was remanded until Dec. 16.

GEORGINA FARMER DIES AT 75 YEARS

Robert Isaac Rye died at his Georgina township residence last Thursday. A farmer all his life, he was born in Pickering township, in 1862, the son of the late Jane and John Rye.

In 1890 he married Margaret Jane Glover of Ravenshoe. He farmed most of his life in North Gwillimbury and Georgina townships. He was an active worker in the Free Methodist church.

Surviving Mr. Rye are his widow; two sons, Howard of Keswick, and Fred, on the home farm in Georgina township; two daughters, Mrs. James Sherwood, Michigan, and Mrs. Ralph Coupland, Newmarket; two brothers, Thomas of Holt and William James of Zephyr; two sisters, Minnie, Mrs. Ralph Draper of Keswick, and Emma, Mrs. John Kelling of Ravenshoe; ten grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

The funeral service which was held on Sunday afternoon at his late residence, was conducted by Rev. C. E. Fockler of Keswick. Pallbearers were Mr. Rye's nephews, Alvin Rye, Freeman Rye, Charles Rye, Ross Draper, Charles Draper and William Draper.

Among those who sent floral tributes were D. Pivnick of Sutton, Edward and Fred Glover, brothers-in-law, and the family (wreath).

The Hard Part

Someone wrote to Mark Lemon and asked for instruction in the writing of funny paragraphs.

Lemon replied: "It is not at all hard to write funny paragraphs. All you have to do is to procure a pen, some paper, and ink, and then sit down and write them as they occur to you. It is not the writing, but the occurring that is hard."

GEO. WILLIAMS SEES INJUSTICE
Consideration for the lot of the man who has built just before the assessor comes around, compared with the man who builds just after the assessor has paid his annual visit, will be given by the finance committee of the town council.
The matter was discussed at the town council meeting Monday evening.
"The man who doesn't start to build until after the assessor is around is not assessed until next year," said Councillor George Williams. "The other chap who builds before the assessor comes around is assessed this year."
"But he doesn't pay taxes until next year," said M. L. Mathews, K.C. clerk and solicitor.
"Yes, there is a point there," Reeve Dr. L. W. Dales said in agreement with Mr. Williams.
"But he is not taxed till the year after he is assessed," said Mr. Mathews.
"I know, but the other fellow gets an extra year," replied Mr. Williams.
Dr. Dales promised that the finance committee would bring in a resolution covering the matter.

Citizen Annoyed When No Chickens Offer On Market
"There was a row at the market Saturday morning," Constable Kenneth Mount reported to the town council on Monday evening.
"A man went down at quarter past eight, and wanted to buy a fowl and couldn't get one," he said. "The buyers had them all."
"Councillor Frank Robinson telephoned me about it," said N. L. Mathews, K. C. clerk and solicitor. "I said to lay a charge against the buyers. If the citizens aren't going to get a chance, we might as well close the market."
"The police aren't taking over the market as we arranged," commented Councillor Wm. Dixon.
"Tom Hall was down there for two or three Saturday mornings, and then it was dropped," said Constable Mount.
"The only way is to enforce the law and lay charges," said Mr. Dixon.
"If we do enforce the law, I think it may not be very long until there is no market," said Constable Mount.
"Get cards printed, setting out that buyers can't purchase produce before 9 a.m., and then there will be no excuse," said Reeve Dr. L. W. Dales.
"If cards are printed and the police are there, there will be no trouble," said Councillor George Williams.
"The by-law says the public can't buy until 9:15 a.m.," said Constable Mount. "Do you want that enforced?"
"Use your discretion about that," said Dr. Dales.
"The trouble is that buyers aren't going to take calls at 9 o'clock," said Constable Mount. "If there is an overstock farmers will be out of luck."
"They used to allow everyone to start at 9 o'clock," said Mr. Williams.
"If a farmer sells two out of ten birds, the buyers won't take the rest," said Councillor W. W. Osborn.
"Consult the merchants," was the suggestion of Deputy-Reeve Joseph Vale.
"Consult the other taxpayers," said Mr. Dixon.
"You go down there at 8:15 and they won't sell you anything until the buyers get the first chance," stated Mr. Mathews.
It was agreed that Constable Mount should post up cards and enforce the by-law this Saturday, and then secure the opinion of the buyers, farmers and public. Later in the week, after securing the opinion of some of the Main St. merchants, Constable Mount was instructed not to take any action this Saturday but to secure the opinion of all interested.

ST. PAUL'S W.A. MEETS

Clerk Voted Aid For Year-End Bookkeeping

Added auditing services, the purchase of a filing cabinet and the hiring of temporary help to revamp the filing system in the clerk's office, were matters deliberated upon by the council as a committee on Monday night. Councilor Lorne C. Lee, chairman of the finance committee, presided, and the auditor, N. Hilborn, was in attendance.

"Mr. Andrews has more than he can handle at this time," the auditor advised. "A little supervision would make things run more smoothly."

"May I ask the auditor if the time has arrived for the addition of full-time help in the office?" the mayor inquired.

"I can't say that, but I think the clerk's hours are too long," Mr. Hilborn answered. "Mr. Andrews has lots of interruptions. You cannot concentrate on your work and be at the wicket every few minutes."

"A part-time assistant might work out very well," Reeve Bert Knowles suggested.

"I suggested we get a youth to look after light and water accounts, collect the bills and read meters," Councilor John Stuart said.

"He would have to be out of the office for the first 10 days of each month," the auditor objected.

"I am rushing the first two weeks of each month," the clerk stated.

"And there is the writing of the minutes of the council and preparation for the meeting early in the month," the auditor added. "It is the amount of work at that time and the interruptions that make it difficult. I don't think there are many places this size where the work is done by one person."

"What would you suggest?" the mayor asked.

"What would you be prepared to do in the next six weeks?" Mr. Lee inquired.

"In addition to the auditing, I would take off the trial balances," the auditor stated.

Mr. Andrews agreed that this would be a help, and it was decided to get extra help from the auditor until the end of the year. It was decided also to purchase a four-drawer filing cabinet that could be locked. Temporary help for two weeks would be needed to make the new filing system operative, the auditor advised.

At the request of John Stuart the "yea's" and "nay's" were taken when the council approved the resolution of the finance committee. There was one vote against its adoption.

ABOUT TOWN

NUMBERLESS WORRIES

Much as one may shout the praises of ignorance and laud the principles (or lack of them) of living dangerously, there are a few things about which one should be sure. The practice of eating at home occasionally and the knowledge of where one's home is, are, we feel, essential to human happiness.

It was with this thought in mind that we sought a number for our home on Reuben street. We'd found it rather annoying to enter a home, sit down at the table and get half way through the steak—only to be told, when we asked for more gravy that we didn't live there. It seemed to spoil the whole meal.

Think of a Number

So we took the matter up with the powers that be. We were told that our house had no number—somehow, we'd already sensed that—but were told that if the house did have a number, it would be either two, four, or six. That was something.

With a glow of anticipation tingling our joints we sought a store, to see what numbers they had. They hadn't any. Not even a nice brass question mark. So we cantered back to our room to think. At least, we hope it was our room.

Just Imagine

We decided that if our house were to have a number it would have to be imaginary. So we imagined our house number was four. We feel much better. You, to whom four is merely something that two and two make in their off moments, will not realize what the number means to us.

It means that when we come to a house with an imaginary four on it, we will not be thrown out. It means that when we go into our room we will see the old familiar wallpaper. It means that when we go to the dresser drawer we can pull out a pair of socks and know, without looking, that they need darning.

HYPOCRISY

A Toronto paper, which, with big-city nervousness, is apt to belittle out a head-line about nothing at all, went into big type last Thursday to indicate that a gentleman was present at London's armistice service who did not approve of the proceedings.

The gentleman, it seems, struggled through the guards and shouted, "All this is hypocrisy—you're deliberately preparing for war." There were shouts of "Kill him!" from those near at hand. The gentleman was identified later as an escaped lunatic.

History in the Un-making

Values change with the years and it is difficult to guess what value, if any, will be given the incident in the history books. The armistice service is one of remembrance for those who died in the war for democracy. The gentleman might well have waited another day to draw attention to those who are about to die for dictatorships... though we doubt if he would have received the same publicity.

Buck-Passing to Posterity

While we are willing to leave the whole business to posterity to wrangle over, we can't help but speculate upon the results of the wrangling. Which will be judged insane... the one who cried "Hypocrisy!" or those who cried "Kill him!"

More than likely posterity will be out in the fields a-warring when the subject is brought up for debate.

SCREEN SHOWS HYMN MESSAGE

The evening service at the Baptist church next Sunday will be featured by an illustrated hymn. The message of the hymn will be illustrated by lantern slides, accompanied by the singing of the choir. It is hoped to have a number of these during the winter.

Considerable interest is being taken in the series of morning sermons, being given by the pastor, Rev. A. R. Park, and the congregation last Sunday morning was one of the largest on record. The theme of the sermon was Christian stewardship.

"CAN WE AFFORD NOT TO HAVE BAND?" AURORAN ASKS

The following article represents the view of an Aurora citizen on the proposed "band" by-law. The Era is pleased to publish it, and would be glad to publish signed opinions on this and other matters of public interest.

Editor, The Aurora Era: At the next local elections for council in Aurora you will be asked whether you favor the council granting $500 a year for three years to support the Aurora Junior band. Perhaps you will hesitate and say, "Can we afford it?" when in truth the real question is, "Can we afford not to do this?"

In Flint, Mich., some years ago a large sum of money was voted for a varied program of social activities, especially among young people, such as provision of playgrounds, athletics, cultural development, etc., which includes bands.

What was the result? A recent survey shows that the city had saved far more in actual hard cash than they had paid out, due to the fact that admissions to reformatories, penitentiaries, etc., had been more than cut in half, and juvenile delinquency had been enormously reduced.

So if there are any in Aurora who are hesitating about this question let them realize that money may talk loud but it does not talk only on one side of the fence. Again this is only looking at things from the negative viewpoint without considering the many positive advantages not only to the boys composing the band but to the general body of citizens.

Won't it be nice to stroll through our park (reconstructed into a real park as it will undoubtedly be some day) and listen to the Junior band playing on the bandstand? Don't you think that visits made by the band to outside points will add to the prestige of the town and even indirectly bring business here?

It is impossible to estimate the physical, mental and spiritual advantages which will be conferred on the members of the band and the resulting development of their aesthetic sense will bring many indirect benefits, since an appreciation of beauty in one of the arts always aids in an appreciation of the others.

Great credit is due Dr. G. W. Williams and the committee responsible for organizing the band. They saw the vision and had the determination to make the vision come true. Let us get behind them and vote for the by-law.

Be true to the vision which comes to thy heart,
Be true to its radiant gleam,
For the things of tomorrow are only a part

Of what is today but a dream.
It was following visions which carried the race
From out of the jungle and den,
And the onward struggle would slacken its pace

If visions should cease among men.

Concerning Insurance, Council Finds Waiting Is Best Policy

For the past three Monday evenings the council chamber has resounded with quotations, proposals and counter-proposals as representatives of various companies sought to place before the council their bids for the town's liability insurance.

An allegedly poor claim experience last year resulted in an original quotation of $1,700 as premium for this year's policy. It was intimated at the time that no company was anxious for the business even at this boosted premium.

Groaning at the prospect of having to pay out so much of the taxpayers' money, the council decided to sit tight for a week. The next week brought a new quotation, and a revised quotation from the first company to quote.

Last Monday evening's session brought the council three quotations, one at $1,500 and two at

TRANSIENTS TO BE REGULATED

Stricter regulation of transient traders will be considered on the next council date, the councillors decided on Monday evening, and merchants operating for only a few months in the year will be required to pay their share of the town's taxes.

"We had a fruit store here during the summer," Mayor Dr. C. R. Boulding told the councillors. "Now it is empty, after having the advantage of the boom season. I would like to see a by-law covering this."

"We have no transient traders by-law," M. L. Andrews advised. "There was one prepared in 1935 but it was not passed."

The clerk was instructed to bring the by-law before the council at its next meeting.

The subject of the morning sermon on Sunday will be "The church instructed regarding the ordinance of the Lord's Supper."

The Friday evening "cottage meetings" have been well attended. The next will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Minge on Friday, Nov. 19. The gatherings take the form of informal fellowship meetings and are carried on in addition to the regular fellowship meetings on Wednesday evenings.

Snowball

A very pleasant evening was spent at Mulock's Corners on Wednesday of last week in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Haines, newlyweds of this place. A very enjoyable time was spent and everyone thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

The W. M. S. and W. A. held their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. M. C. Johnson, Brampton, this week. There were a good number from this community and also from Mrs. Johnson's community present. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Simpson and Mr. William Wreggill, of and such phrases as "claims administration" and "claims adjustment" smote the councillors' ear-drums, while in the distance could be heard rumblings of the strife between tariff and non-tariff companies.

The matter is now being left until the regular December meeting of the council, when final quotations will be received. "We've learned a good deal about insurance," by waiting," a councillor pointed out. "And we have saved the town at least $400 on the amount originally quoted."

WILL RULE ON GROUND SIGNS

"Several signs were removed from the town's sidewalks and boulevards on Halloween," Reeve Bert Knowles told the council on Monday evening. "Should those signs have been there?"

"On all signs hanging over the street we get a waiver of damages," Town Clerk M. L. Andrews stated. "How about signs on the street?" the Reeve asked.

"There are several signs on the sidewalks," Councilor L. C. Lee said. "I don't think they should be there," the mayor advised. "We should try to regulate them."

The by-law committee was asked to look into the matter of unauthorized signs on boulevards and sidewalks.

Caledon East, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mills.

The W. A. held their annual chicken supper in the church last Friday evening. Supper was served at 7 o'clock.

The annual bazaar will be held at the home of Mrs. Arthur Storey on Dec. 2. Afternoon tea will be served.

The many friends of Mrs. Chas. Casey will regret to learn of her illness at the present time in St. Michael's hospital, Toronto.

Kettleby

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wilson visited Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lewis of Dunkerton on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Tatton, also Mr. and Mrs. F. Schmidt, visited in Toronto on Sunday.

Mrs. Wm. Iredale of Toronto is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Davis, the latter having had the misfortune to fall and tear the ligaments of her arm.

Mrs. Norman Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. G. Marvell and Miss Helen Curtis of Toronto and Mr. Wm. Pincin of Hamilton were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. F.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mrs. MacNab, Sr., has arrived in New York from Scotland and is expected here this week.

Mrs. Henry MacGill spent the weekend with her son, Bert, in Niagara Falls.

Miss Anna Leggit has been visiting her aunt, Miss Verna Bryan, in Toronto.

Miss E. Anderson of Toronto spent the weekend with her sister, Mrs. J. R. McKenzie, Yonge St.

Mrs. George Walker and Mrs. H. J. Charles are attending the convention of the Women's Institutes at the Royal York hotel, Toronto, this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Fobert have closed their house here and are staying in Toronto for the winter.

Jim Henry and George Baldwin are among the "hunters" absent from town.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cummer of Toronto have been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samson Watson.

More than 60 friends gathered Monday evening at the Calhoun home to "shower" the bride and groom—now Mr. and Mrs. W. Chas. Hadfield. During the evening the Calhoun-Davis team entertained by tap-dancing.

Dr. and Mrs. E. J. Thompson, Mrs. R. Delafaye, Mrs. Geo. Wilkinson and Mrs. A. C. Hoffman attended the bazaar at the Church of All Nations, Toronto, last week.

Mrs. Porter of Toronto is visiting her sister, Mrs. H. J. Baycroft, Temperance St.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Locke and family were the guests of Mrs. John Locke on Sunday.

Elma Rebekah Lodge, Aurora, were the guests of Thora Lodge, Newmarket, on Tuesday evening.

ATTEND W. A. AT VICTORIA SQUARE

Mrs. M. L. Andrews, Mrs. R. Delafaye, Mrs. A. M. Clark and Mrs. T. A. Haines attended the W. A. meeting at Victoria Square on Wednesday evening. Mr. Andrews extended greetings from the Presbytery executive.

ANDREWS-SCOTT WEDDING IS HELD

On Thursday evening, Nov. 11, at the United church parsonage, the marriage took place of Clara Elizabeth Scott, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Scott, Aurora, to Ernest Edmund Andrews, son of Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Andrews of Newmarket, with Rev. E. J. Thompson officiating.

The bride wore a turquoise blue satin gown, with navy accessories. Her sister, Mrs. Albert Collins, Aurora, as matron of honor, was gown in wine satin with a corsage of carnations.

Mr. Fred Andrews, Newmarket, acted as his brother's best man.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home on Irwin Ave., Aurora, where about 60 guests partook of a dainty buffet luncheon, after which the couple left for a motor trip. The bride wore a wine outfit. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Andrews will reside in Newmarket.

PETITIONS TO BE PICKED UP

The petitions which have been circulating on behalf of the central Ontario highway are being picked up, as a result of a decision reached by the town council on Monday night. They will be forwarded to the central office, and used with other petitions in favor of completion of the highway.

A letter was read to the council from W. M. Bowes, Port Perry, voicing "appreciation of the manner in which you have dealt with a delicate matter," referring to the line taken by Aurora's representatives to the highway dinner held in Newmarket last week.

"Two roads will be taken over," Mayor Dr. C. R. Boulding explained. "They will have the province designate one of them as a provincial highway and pave it, and the county will improve the other road."

"How about us giving a dinner?" Councilor Lee asked.

"This matter is not likely to be disposed of in a hurry," the mayor stated. "Let us wait for an opportune time."

A number of the ladies in the community benefitted by the needlecraft course sponsored by the Women's Institute last week, and under the supervision of Miss Frisch, of Toronto.

On Friday evening the Women's Institute held a progressive euchre in Blatchford's hall, which was enjoyed by all present. Prize winners were Miss Daphne Kerr, Mrs. Albert Foran, J. E. Blatchford and J. J. Cull.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Curtis were Tuesday visitors at the home of Mrs. J. Ramdon of Newmarket.

Over Forty Players Seek Hockey Berths

The Junior hockey squad will meet its first test next week when they enter the S. P. A. schedule in Toronto. The following teams, which are also entered in the league, will show the type of competition the boys will be up against:

University of Toronto, St. Michael's (majors and minors), Oshawa, Toronto Lions, Marlborough, Barrie Colts, Galt, Stratford, East Toronto, Guelph and Paris.

The boys have been training steadily for some time, and on Thursday afternoon and Monday evening they journeyed to Toronto to practise on artificial ice. The job of picking out line-ups has been a difficult one, as over 40 lads showed up for practice.

While final selections have not yet been made, it is likely that Frank Carr and Joe Tunney will share duties in goal. Prospects for defence include Allan Bonke, Aubrey Barker, Clarence James, Buster Carter and Gordon Bowen. Jack Atkinson, Hugh Mair, Allan

LODGE HOLDS EUCHRE

The women of Elma Rebekah lodge will hold a euchre on Monday evening in the I.O.O.F. hall. The public are invited.

Wrightman, Bud Jones, and Eugene McComb are among the candidates for wing positions. Bill Wilson, Roy Collins and A. Graham look good at centre.

The trips to Toronto, necessary to put the boys in playing trim and permit the selection of a team, have cost the club money. To retrieve its fortunes, the executive has decided to hold a dance at Middlebrook's hall at Mulock's Corners this Monday evening.

There will be 15 prizes for lucky ticket holders and a popular orchestra has been hired to ensure a pleasant evening for all concerned. In fairness to non-dancers who wish to support the team, it is not necessary to attend the dance in order to qualify for a prize.

Boys Plead With Council Seek Room For Study Use

Barton Teasdale, Keith Southwood and Clarence Doolittle appeared before the council on Monday evening on behalf of a group of boys who wished to use the court room in the town hall as a meeting place for a vocational study group.

A rate of $2.50 a night had been set by the council a week previously, but this, the boys felt, was too much for them to pay. There were about a dozen boys in the group and there were no dues, and only a small initiation fee, they explained.

"They want the room at cost," Mayor Dr. C. R. Boulding pointed out, after the delegation had left. "I think we should foster these things if they are of worth to the town," Councilor Lorne C. Lee stated.

"How about the basement of Mechanics' Hall?" "I don't think it would be healthy," Councilor John Stuart replied.

"There are others who make use of room in the hall and don't pay for it," Reeve Bert Knowles said.

"I don't think we should change our minds," Mr. Stuart stated.

"They have explained the group in more detail and it certainly seems a worthy cause," the Reeve remarked.

"How can we work out the cost of the room?" asked Mr. Lee. "It's a matter of fuel and light," Mr. Stuart said.

RECEIVES NOVEL AT BOOK FAIR

Congratulations are extended to Miss Anna Smith who won a "lucky prize" (A Walpole novel) at the Book Fair in Toronto last week.

POTTAGEVILLE CHORUS HAS PARTY FOR DAVID FEGAN

A farewell party was given by the United church choir for David Fegan at the home of the choir leader, Mrs. Alfred Elder, on Wednesday evening of last week. Mr. Fegan was presented with a pocket wallet. Games were played, with refreshments served afterwards and concluding with a tea-cup reading by Mr. Fegan which caused great excitement.

Mr. Fegan has been employed by H. Bowman for the past two years. He has been a loyal worker in the United church and will be greatly missed as he was the assistant superintendent, and took charge of the missionary services. He also assisted with the choir. He will take up his new duties at Hamilton.

On Thursday afternoon last week, a car in making a bad turn hit a hydro pole at the northwest corner, shattering about ten feet from the top of the pole and also breaking a fence post on the property of Mr. and Mrs. A. Archibald. The hydro pole has been spliced.

Great improvements have been made recently to Allan's store, making it much more lively in Pottageville.

Mr. W. Weedon of Toronto spent the weekend at his home here.

Miss H. Cutting of Toronto spent the weekend with her parents here, Mr. and Mrs. T. Cutting.

Text-Books Come To Life In New Teaching Methods

Proud parents of Aurora public school children got an eye-opener when they visited the exhibits of the children's work in the school on Monday afternoon. It was evident from the displays that school-teaching has developed considerably from the methods of a generation ago.

Miss A. H. Pearson's grade two pupils, for instance, have gone into the milk problem in a big way. Not content merely to drink it, they have drawn diagrams showing the steps used in the process of making butter and cheese. They have outlined the method of pasteurization so that even their parents can understand it.

On a table on the far side of the room the reporter found a model of a farm, and along the blackboards were attractive farm scenes.

Grade three children had evidently stopped a while to look at child life in Japan, then gone on to contemplate the more peaceful landscape of Holland. A model of a typically Dutch scene contained canals and windmills and did a far bigger job for geography than the old text-books ever could.

At the back of the room was a real zoo with real animals in it, except that the cages were made out of shoeboxes and the animals had been cut out of cardboard and colored by the pupils.

Miss G. Robinson had directed her grade four students in learning how the Indians used to live before they went into the tourist business. There were log houses made in small scale, and weaving looms, made by the children.

There were tom-toms made out of coffee tins, with a piece from a rubber inner tube stretched over the top and bottom of the tin, and they made a swell noise, too. There was a pipe of peace, the stem of which was swathed from the handle of a fly-swatter. Interesting exhibits of Indian relics and there were plenty of pictures showing how the Indians put in their time before Pontiac was the name of a car.

Grade five students had, under the guidance of Miss M. Malloy,

MRS. W. DUNNING WILL ENTERTAIN INSTITUTE

The Aurora Women's Institute will meet at 3 o'clock on Thursday afternoon of next week at the home of Mrs. Walter Dunning, Temperance St. South. Mrs. J. R. Harrison, Mrs. Frank Smith, Mrs. Ireland and Mrs. W. Dunning will be the hostesses.

made a thorough study of boats. Models of canoes hollowed from logs, and early Viking ships made from paper mache illustrated dramatically the fact that a life on the rolling wave was pretty much all wet in the old days.

A model of a modern harbor was wonderfully well done, though the light in the lighthouse went out before the reporter came in. Pictures of boats and ships of all kinds were hung about the rooms and one drawing of an old four-master had all the names of the sails and spars on it. There were also plasticine models of ships and the students had done a model of a room in a modern home, just to show what the sailor left behind him.

Another grade five room, under Dr. A. Webster, had considered the problem of safety. A model of "Safety Town" showed what would happen if everyone looked where he was going. There was also a unique bookcase made, of all things, out of bricks, attractively built and painted by the students. The poster work in this room was also worthy of attention, particularly by Jay-walkers.

The study of forests and of wood products had led the grade six students, under Miss H. Boynton, to make collections of leaves, pictures of trees, specimens of wood products and by-products. One table contained a model of a Canadian saw mill located where a model forest made a model lake. On the other side of the room there were model rooms completely furnished, showing the many uses of wood.

Crowds Pack Hall When Junior Band Gives First Performance

Mechanics' hall was packed to the doors on Friday evening by throngs anxious to hear Aurora's Junior band put on its first big concert.

One of the most interesting of the selections played by the young musicians was the march "Aurora Boys," written for the band by its leader, Robert Moore. The band, also accompanied Dr. C. R. Boulding in his fine solo, "Mother Machree."

In addition to selections played by the entire band there was a quartet of trombones and a quintet of horns. A duet, "Juanita," was given by C. and W. Williams. The dance team of Calhoun and

RETURN FROM ENGLAND

Jimmy Jones, Sam Brookfield and John Sloan have returned from the trip which they made together to the Old Country.

Daisy proved a crowd-pleaser and Miss Ruth Bates received much applause for her two solos, "Will o' the Wisp" and "My Liddle." An accordion solo by Dixie Dean and a clarinet solo by D. Moore were also greatly appreciated.

Dr. G. W. Williams was chairman. The guest artists

Teddy Petlovany had the misfortune to have four cows die on Friday. Veterinarians thought that arsenate of lead poisoning was the cause of death.

Mrs. Percy Hutchison and young son returned home on Saturday from York County hospital.

The community club meets Friday at the schoolhouse. A good program is being planned.

Wesley Lundy will preach at the Church of Christ this Sunday evening. Special music is expected.

A wedding of interest in Cedar Valley was solemnized by the Rev. A. Stuart in Toronto on Nov. 11, when Kathleen Mary Gill of Toronto became the bride of Mr. Gerald Dean Brandon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brandon, Sr., of Cedar Valley. The bridesmaid was Miss Marjorie Gill and the groomsmen were Mr. Nicholas Komer.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mrs. Charles Brandon, Sr. The young couple will reside in Buttonville.

HOLLAND LANDING Present Gift On Departure

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hare and family spent Sunday in Richmond Hill with the latter's sister, Mrs. George Wilson.

Mrs. Percy Thompson spent a few days last week in Toronto with her mother, Mrs. Porter.

Mr. Homer Henbest and Miss Maxwell, of Inglewood, called on Mrs. and Mrs. M. Evans on Sunday.

Miss Bessie Evans and Master Gordon Hill of Newmarket spent the weekend with the former's parents here.

Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Stephenson who moved into the house vacated by Mr. and Mrs. Alex Stephenson on Saturday, are welcomed to the village.

A farewell party was given for Mr. and Mrs. Alex Stephenson on Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley McCallum. Rev. H. W. Vaughan, in a brief address, conveyed to the popular young couple the reluctance with which the community parts with them and wished them success and happiness in their new home in Toronto. Miss Dorothy Shepard presented them with a table lamp which was a total surprise and seemingly a delightful one.

Rev. A. J. Forte, rector of Christ church, has just announced his intention of making a slight change in the Sunday services, effective this month and to continue until April 1. The winter schedule follows:

On the second and fourth Sundays in the month Sunday-school will be at 10 a.m. and morning prayer or holy communion at 11 a.m. On the first and third Sundays Sunday-school will be at 2 p.m. and evening prayer at 3 p.m. On the fifth Sunday evening prayer will be at 7 p.m.

Mr. Forte is suggesting this change as the only solution for the winter months after very careful consideration. It is hoped that he will receive the kindly co-operation of the congregation in this arrangement.

The United church Y.P.S. has been re-organized. The officers will be installed next Thursday evening. The meetings will be held each Thursday at 8 o'clock in the Sunday-school room. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Leonard Thompson, who was injured in a fall from his bicycle, is able to attend school again.

VIVIAN CATTLE ROOM IN VIVIAN DISTRICT

The weather has been very mild for this time of year, but owing to the rains and dampness, there are a number of people laid up with colds.

Mr. McPherson has been in bed for several days and was not able to attend Sunday-school on Sunday.

Mr. Rowan preached in the evening at usual.

The church committee have selected their site for a new building, but will probably not commence their work until spring.

Mr. Joe Graham was welcomed at church again on Sunday.

There is a stray yearling heifer at Bob Mitchell's on the 8th concession, about a mile north of McPherson's store. He would be pleased to have the owner call, as the weather is getting cold for them out of doors.

There are several other stray cattle in this community that should be taken care of.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith of White Rose had Friday tea with Mr. and Mrs. Roy Howlett.

Mrs. Earl Toole and two children returned home on Sunday after a week's visit with relatives at Cedar Brae.

Mrs. G. McClure, Dora and Murray, were Sunday tea visitors at the home of Mr. Howard McClure.

Miss Audrey Hunt spent part of last week with her grandfather at Richmond Hill.

Miss Grace Lehman of Newmarket had Monday evening tea with Mr. and Mrs. Guppy.

Miss Hannah Pollard of Woodstock spent the weekend with Mrs. M. Starr and Mrs. E. Hawtin.

Miss Marion Richardson of Aurora spent the weekend with her aunt, Mrs. G. McClure.

Mrs. N. Kay, also Mrs. I. Kay, and little Edith, had Thursday tea with Mrs. George Hunt.

The reeve of Whitechurch, Earl Toole, is attending county council in Toronto this week.

Mrs. A. Milne of Lindsay spent a couple of days last week with her sisters, Mrs. B. Dike and Miss L. Hawtin.

Mrs. Minnie Wilson entertained ten guests in honor of her daughter and son-in-law's fifth wedding anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. Edson Johnston, the occasion being Mrs. Wilson's wedding anniversary also.

A very large crowd attended the beef ring annual oyster supper in Bogartown school house last Friday night.

The new house on Mr. Broffey's farm has been complete and Mr. Guppy and family are occupying it. The new steel barn was also erected this summer. These new buildings do credit to the little village of Pleasantville.

The Institute meeting at Mrs. Williams' home was attended by 28 members and visitors. Mrs. L. Willis gave the paper on "A Voice Kindly Thought Of," while Mrs. R. Howlett rendered a beautiful solo. Mrs. A. Forbes and Miss Harper gave an instrumental number, and Mrs. F. Smith gave a reading. A lovely lunch was served by the committee in charge.

Hope

The supper on Thursday evening, which was sponsored by the W. A., was a decided success. The W. A. will also hold a quilt at the home of Mrs. Geo. Broderick on Wednesday of this week.

Stewart Stickwood is ill. A speedy recovery is hoped for.

Mrs. Mary Rolling of Mount Albert is spending the week with Mrs. Stanley Boyd.

Mr. and Mrs. Winfred Micks, Miss Violet and Mr. Elwin, paid a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Micks on Sunday.

Mrs. G. Breen spent last week visiting her daughter in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Micks, Mrs. E. Gibson and Vera paid a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Glover of Sharon on Armistice Day.

Mrs. J. Davis, Misses Phyllis and Lillian Pegg, were calling on Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Lepard of Newmarket on Sunday.

Mrs. Wilfred Pegg and Mrs. Everton Pegg spent Saturday in Toronto.

Allan Bartholomew of Newmarket and Donald Stickwood, who have been hunting with several from Ravenshoe, returned home on Sunday evening with a deer each. The six men in camp were successful enough to bring four deer home.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Pegg of Beeton were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Pegg on Sunday.

Mrs. Russell of Weston visited his home here on Sunday. Miss Mildred Mitchell and Miss Amy Gibson of Newmarket spent the weekend at the latter's home here.

Miss Irene Linstead had tea with Miss Blanche Stickwood on Sunday evening.

Ansnoeveld

On Thursday afternoon, Rev. Mr. Dykstra gave a very interesting talk on missionary work in China, in the Christian Reformed church, and in the evening Mr. Dykstra gave another lecture and a large number of slides were also shown.

Thanksgiving service was held on Tuesday evening in the Christian Reformed church.

Rev. W. Meyer, of Windsor, preached at the Christian Reformed church here on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Saepe of Brampton spent Sunday with Mrs. Saepe's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Rupke.

Miss G. Blemond is spending a few days in Brampton and from there will go to Hamilton for some time.

Mr. A. Havinga has left for Peterboro for the winter.

Mr. H. Blemond has gone to Hamilton for the winter.

OUTSTANDING FALL NOVELS

Turning Wheels: By Stuart Cloete. (Toronto: William Collins). Price, $2.50.

Robinson of England: By John Drinkwater. Illustrated by John Dowd. (Toronto: S. J. Reginald Saunders). Price, $2.00.

North-West Passage: By Kenneth Roberts. (Toronto: Doubleday, Doran). Price, $2.75.

The Citadel: By A. J. Cronin. (Toronto: Ryerson Press). Price $2.50.

Stuart Cloete has written a savage and magnificent book. This seems to be an age of great first novels. Two years ago we had Margaret Mitchell. Today we have Cloete. It is not difficult for a reviewer to predict almost as large a harvest of readers for the newcomer in the field. A million or so more or less does not seem much to matter. A vast immediate audience can be secured for a book that happens to hit the contemporary taste. What really counts is enduring value, and Mr. Cloete has brought to bear on his theme so much skill, intelligence and human nature that the readers of his second book will still be rereading his first.

Mr. Cloete disclaims all knowledge of the literary art. He is one of those refreshing people who never self-consciously have striven to be writers. His Dutch ancestry and his twenty years of life on the Cape since the war gave him his theme. By the divination of genius he has realized the effective way of treating it.

It is epic writing such as we do not often encounter in these sophisticated times. He tells the story of the Boer trek from Cape Colony into the Transvaal one hundred years ago. His description of conditions is convincing, his presentation of characters extraordinarily vital, and his ability to organize scenes of vivid dramatic power is surpassed by no writer of today.

The outstanding characters are four. Hendrick van der Berg, the leader of the trek, has all the obstinacy and fanaticism that we associate with the typical Boer. Variations of his type we may find in Hardy's Mayor of Casterbridge or Sheila Kaye-Smith's Reuben Bachfield, but Hendrick's redeeming tenderness is left out of the picture. The biggest figure both in bulk and value is Tante Anna. She escapes the final disaster that engulfs the colony, and the book closes with her colloquy with Hendrick, the Kaffir medicine man and magician, another astonishingly vivid creation of observation and fancy. Fourth in the group of memorable delineations we should rank Zwart Piet, whose wooing and winning of Sannie leaves Lochinvar's exploit far in the rear. These are the major figures, but great as they are they leave the minors light and space to exhibit themselves. We are not likely to forget Zwart's sister Sara, nor the nightmare horror of her death.

The general narrative is vigorous enough to bear the story in its current, but here and there scenes appear which are indelibly etched in memory. All the fights, human and animal are good, but the final one is the best in its slow-moving agony, and Rinkal's fantastic journey through the Zulu lines is a fine piece of romantic invention.

A singularly quiet but beautiful book is John Drinkwater's posthumous Robinson of England. Its appeal is to lovers of England, and when you are momentarily weary of plot and counterplot and high tension excitement you will find a refreshment in its pages that will repay you.

All the zest of adventurous endeavour will be found in the early pages of Robert's Northwest Passage. Langdon Towne and the Harvard authorities have had a disagreement, so he solves his difficulty by enlisting in Rogers' Rangers. His purpose is to fight, but before he gets through with it he learns what bush warfare is in its harshest conditions. It is the last year of the war, and the redoubtable Rogers has been ordered to wipe out the Indian town of St. Francis. Half the book deals with the incredible hardships of the advance and retreat, and unquestionably this portion of the narrative is vigorous and exciting in the highest degree.

The second half is of a totally different character. Its purpose is two-fold. Langdon Towne's development as a painter and his love romance furnish some of the interest, but the main value of the book does not lie in this direction. The chief concern of the author is to follow the declining fortunes of Major Rogers. His downfall is tragic, and is explained partly by the machinations of his enemies, Sir William Johnson, the most powerful and sinister of these, and partly by the degeneration of his own character. His vehemence led him to the heights, but the violence of his nature carries with it the seeds of its decay. The study does not lack subtlety, but the author has not succeeded in weaving these varied strands into a coherent whole.

The last book to be noted is Dr. Cronin's The Citadel. It is a highly effective story, and holds the reader's interest from cover to cover. The book is propaganda, and the medical profession will have some reason to think its statement of the case unfair. They will feel that the author has made the particular instance stand for the general rule, and that the public at large will conclude that the standards of medical practice are regrettably low, and the etiquette of the profession overdue for a thorough house-cleaning. It would be unfair to the author to charge him with this intention, but if you start down the propaganda trail you are not always master of your direction.

There is no space here to tell the story. A newly fledged doctor, Andrew Mason, is the central character. Through his early struggles he keeps his ambitions unsullied, and he has a splendid wife, Christine, to support him. With prosperity comes the change and he is sucked into the current of a lucrative London practice. The book ends as we had expected with his victory over this temptation, but Christine, his wife is dead.

This is the best novel from Dr. Cronin's pen, and sustains his reputation as an author of books that matter.

"The theatrical producer conferred with the dramatic critic before acting."
"Don't you think," asked the producer anxiously, "that my cast is giving a sock performance?"
"Yes," replied the critic, "and the audience is taking it on the chin."

E. WEBB WILL ADDRESS BRITISH ISRAEL MEETING

Last Sunday afternoon Miss Mabel Harbour of Toronto gave an address to the members of the Newmarket branch of British Israel World Federation. The subject of her address was "What's Wrong With Our Laws."

Miss Harbour, associated as she is with British Israel headquarters, has made a particular study of the subject, with all the help available, and it was a most comprehensive and masterly address, which combined with her pleasing voice and delivery, made it one of the most outstanding talks of the year.

Miss Harbour is a gold medalist of the London College of Eloquence, England. Newmarket branch was greatly honored by her coming, and the members appreciated it especially as she had a severe cold. Early in December Rev. E. J. Springett will give an evening address, while next Sunday E. Webb will be the speaker. Mr. Webb is one of the younger speakers and is well liked in Newmarket. His last talk was "The World as It Is Today," and he gave a splendid address. Everybody is welcome to hear Mr. Webb next Sunday in the Presbyterian church at 3.30 p.m.

GLENVILLE HOMES TO HAVE ELECTRIC POWER

Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Doan, Bob and Calvin, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. R. Loughheed of Thornbury.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Saxon of Newmarket visited Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Doner on Friday evening. Mr. George Wray attended the Royal Winter Fair on Wednesday. Misses Jeanne and Laurene Keffer entertained their friends at a euchre party on Thursday evening.

Master Donald Jones spent Saturday with Miss Alzina Owens of Newmarket.

Mrs. C. Wray and Miss Orma Wray spent Friday in Aurora, the latter attending the teachers' convention.

Messrs. Irving and Frank Staley are spending a couple of weeks deer hunting in the north. Misses Grace, Clarice and Hazel Sharpe, Messrs. Oliver and Errol Gould attended the fowl supper at Bond Head on Wednesday evening.

Stanley Somerville, Charles Norton, C. F. Webster, Gordon Webster, and the United church have installed the hydro this fall and expect the power to be turned on this week.

The Women's Association of the United church are holding their fall supper at the hall next Thursday. Supper will be served from 8.30 p.m., after which a splendid program is being arranged to be held at the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Levi Weddel and family spent Sunday at Streetsville with Mr. and Mrs. L. Ramsey, the Misses Alice Ramsey and Kathleen Weddel returning home with them after spending a week at Streetsville.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Durt, also Mr. and Mrs. Emile Jarvis, and family, all of Toronto, visited Mr. and Mrs. Alan Shaw one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Collins entertained friends from Niagara Falls last week.

Mrs. Bertha Phillips has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Buchanan, at Oak, for a few days.

Mrs. K. Summerville of Toronto spent a few days with Mrs. Shaw this week.

Service at the United church will be at the usual time on Sunday next at 7.30 p.m. and Sunday school will be held at 10.30 a.m. Everyone is welcome at both services.

Mr. Jack Wilson of Souris, Man., is visiting his sister, Miss Ruth Wilson, and other relatives.

Mrs. Breakay of Weston is spending a few days with Miss Dorothy Ramsey.

MRS. MINNIE MORTON DIES OF PNEUMONIA

Less than two weeks after her sister-in-law, Miss Morton, with whom she made her home, passed away, Mrs. Minnie Wood Morton, Bradford, succumbed to pneumonia on Nov. 2. Taken suddenly ill the day before her sister-in-law's death, Mrs. Morton had made a brave struggle and a few days before her death she seemed considerably improved, but the change came too late for her weakened condition.

Mrs. Morton was the last surviving member of a family of six sons and two daughters, the children of the late Robert Wood and Susan Fennell. She married William Edward Morton of Holland Landing, who lived less than seven years after his marriage. During their married life, Mr. and Mrs. Morton lived in Holland Landing. Following his death, 34 years ago, Mrs. Morton moved to Bradford with her young daughter, Mary, and her sister-in-law.

Mrs. Morton is survived by her only daughter, Mary, Mrs. Styche of Atholton; her three grandchildren, Jean, Austin and Stanley Styche; one brother, Clarence Wood, and one sister, Elizabeth Wood; two brothers-in-law, George Morton, postmaster of Bradford, and Edward Morton of Toronto, and a sister-in-law, Mrs. Mather of New Lowell.

She was an active and faithful worker in all the activities of Trinity Anglican church, Bradford, and for many years she had been president of the W. A.

The funeral was held Nov. 4 from her late residence and interment took place at Christ church, Holland Landing. The service was conducted by Rev. A. G. Channen of Bradford, rector of Trinity church, assisted by a former rector, Rev. T. J. Dew of Mimico. Pall-bearers were her nephews: Dr. James M. Mather, Grimsby; George Mather, New Lowell; George Stoddart, Toronto; Kenneth Wood, Edward Wood and Robert Wood of Bradford.

Mrs. S. J. Doane, who has been travelling in the western provinces for the last six weeks, has returned home. Mrs. E. J. Munroe of New York, who accompanied her, is spending a week with Mrs. Doane.

The artist who was painting a portrait of President Roosevelt had been in the habit of entering the White House by the front door of the executive offices, where the guards know him. One day he decided to take a short cut through the side entrance. A guard halted him. "What's in that package you've got?" he asked. "Just an easel," said the artist. "Well, we don't allow animals in the White House," snapped the guard.

A TRIBUTE TO THE COW

"The cow is a most wonderful laboratory. She takes the grasses of the pasture, and the roughage of the field, and converts them into the most perfect food for man. In that food there is a mysterious something which scientists have found essential to the highest health of the human race, and which can be found nowhere else. Men have sought for centuries the fabled Fountain of Youth. The nearest approach to that fountain which has yet been discovered is the udder of the cow. Without her milk, children languish, the vigor of the adult declines, and the vitality of the human race runs low."—A tribute by Hon. Frank O. Lowden, St. Louis, Mo., Illinois.

November

By GOLDEN GLOW

From now till Christmas the nights will grow darker and darker earlier every evening. Till Dec. 21, when winter will arrive, according to the calendar.
It may be that wintry weather may have arrived ere this gets into print, but to-day, as I write, it is dark and dreary and threatening rain. Yesterday, Sunday, we had a typical November day and Saturday was little better.
But oh, what two wonderful days we had last week, clear and sunny, with an autumn tang and snap in the air. And did the hunt club enjoy those days? They have had some wonderful runs, this fall, and according to the press the one on Armistice Day was just about perfect.

The grass is so green this autumn, for we have had an abundance of rain. You hear the wild fowl overhead flying south on their long trek to winter quarters. The red-headed woodpeckers are still with us and starlings by the score. That tame crow fairly haunts our place and has developed a particular animosity to my weather-vane. No doubt it will demolish it some day when none of us are around to drive it off. It is so persistent.

The boys at high school and college are enjoying football, the small boys are practising hockey on every quiet street. Little girls are roller-skating again. And indoor sports are again enjoyed, badminton especially.

We take a greater interest in moving pictures and concerts of all kinds that are being advertised, while fowl suppers come thick and fast. The lodges have special meetings and installations with banquets. The missionary societies are particularly busy with their Christmas bales and boxes of gifts. The weather does not put a damper on church activities.

But oh! The mud the pet dogs drag up on people's verandahs.
You may as well make the best of it or deny yourself the pleasure of owning a pet. All the hounds are out of town on the annual deer-hunt, and our nim-rods are still away—some have returned, while others are still enjoying the far north. No doubt they would appreciate it a trifle colder but with the experience of a few years ago, maybe not, for winter shut down all of a sudden and many hunters were trapped and some terrible experiences resulted.

The weatherman stated this morning that winter was just around the corner and we could look for northwest winds and snow flurries tomorrow. It is the awful gales we have had this month that fill us all with horror when we read of the distress of so many boats still sailing the Great Lakes every year at this time we hear of so many shipwrecks and narrow escapes of others.

Well, I do sound dismal!
November isn't quite so bad as all that, I'm sure. And it really has been a splendid month, apart from so many gales of wind. We can get out our goloshes now I expect, and our overshoes, our winter coats, etc., and be ready when the wintry blast do hit us.
It is due any day now. But soon Christmas preparations will make us forget all about the dark days and we'll be revelling in all the joys of that glad season.

FRENCHMAN WILL SPEAK ON SUNDAY

The evangelistic meetings being held at Buckingham, Quebec, have proved so successful that they are being carried on for another week, so this community will be without its pastor again next Sunday.

F. Bulhur of France, who has been a student at the Toronto Baptist Seminary for the last four years, and is quite well known to some of the people here and is a very fine speaker, will preach next Sunday. He expects to return to France very soon to work there with the French Bible Mission, which is doing a tremendous work in France, Switzerland and Belgium. He was preaching in northern Ontario this past summer, and used to broadcast each Sunday, first in French and then in English.

Mr. Tomkins who spoke last Sunday, told in the morning of the splendid work being done in Sudbury. He was assisting John Boyd there last summer. When they started, there was no Sunday-school and by the end of the summer they were having an average attendance of 100 pupils.

Mrs. Johnson and Miss Pearl

Rev. J. A. C. Kell, wife and family, of Toronto, visited at Mr.
E. A. Storrey's on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Morgan of Goodwood visited at Mrs. Mornason's mother's on Sunday.

Mrs. Jessie Sage of Stouffville visited Mrs. H. Smith on Sunday.

The Women's Association entertained the Stouffville association at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Cook on Thursday evening. There was a splendid attendance and Mrs. S. H. Forte gave a good address on November 8, a son.

To The Editor

Editor, The Era: On page 2 of your issue of Nov. 11, under the heading, "The Common Round," by
I. I. C., is an article, "All Valiant Dust."

Upon my reading this article, my thoughts were immediately arrested by the question, what does "valiant dust" mean? Or what meaning does I.I.C. wish to convey? As I honestly confess that to me at least it has no meaning.

Webster tells us that "valiant" means brave, intrepid, courageous,
and that "intrepid" means fearless, bold, daring. Now none of these terms can be applied to dust, which according to Webster is fine particles of matter, earth, the grave, mortality, a mean condition.

Therefore, it becomes nothing more than a meaningless sound, high and lofty, though it may be.
And when the metaphor, "All Valiant Dust," is applied to my fallen comrades, whom I was reluctant to leave some years ago, I must voice my protest. Because they are worthy of a much higher honor than a meaningless phrase, "All Valiant Dust."

The writer of this article does not remember them only two minutes in the year, but rather they are ever in his memory, as one who was there is not prone to forget.

R.R.1, Cedar Valley,

Editor, The Era: In your issue of Sept. 9, under the heading, "Decision to Start Co-operative," I noticed at a meeting held in Pickering College an ex-employee of a chain store made the following statement, "that in the store where he worked everything was charged in at the same price as it was sold and that the store had to pass along to the public any shrinkage or breakage by short-weighting or overcharging them."

It is to the latter part of this statement and also to the chair-man's (Mr. Wesley Williams) ill-considered remarks I take exception and refute in the strongest possible manner. Ex-chain store employee should know no such dishonest practices would be tolerated by any of the chain store executives, and any dishonest employee practising such irregularities would be instantly dismissed.

In my company every store manager is allowed for any possible shrinkage on all bulk goods, also breakages and damaged merchandise, and credits taken for these never have been questioned in my experience as a store manager for eight years.

I have contacted two other chain store managers and their systems are the same. Therefore, ex-chain store employee's statement is absolutely false and made for some hidden motive.

Yours truly,
J. M. DOUGLAS.

6TH CON. N.G.
QUILT WORKED BY LADIES 8 TO 80

There has been considerable rain lately and a real downfall through the night a few days ago.
Duke Horner, one of the enterprising farmers near Behaven, celebrated his birthday on Nov.
14 with a chicken dinner. Guests were his only child, Mrs. Nelson; his two brothers, with their wives; and Mrs. Arnold and an older sister.

With the hunters being away and the country roads for walking, the attendance on Sunday morning was not as large as usual. The sermon by the pastor on the text
"As clay in the hands of the potter" was very earnestly dealt with, and enjoyed by those present.

The community was sorry to hear of the accident to little Doreen Smith who fractured her elbow. Doreen was missed on Sunday morning.

Harold Smith and Raymond Morton, who have been in York County hospital for some time, have returned home. Sympathy is extended to both.

Miss Norma Murrell and Bobby Murrell from near Sunderland, made a visit by bicycle to friends on the sixth lately. This is one of the families much missed.

Many in this neighborhood are laid up with bad colds which seem prevalent.

Miss Hart of Lindsay is the guest of her brother, Mr. Wm.
Hart.

The broadcloth Dresden plate quilt completed by the Bethel friends, was bought by a lady summer cottager, taken to her home town and donated to the W.M.S. there as her share of missionary gifts. One block in this was done by Mary Huntley, aged eight, and much of the good quilting put on it was done by Mrs. Millicent Barker, who is nearing 80 years.

Slow Work
The mistress of the house went into the kitchen to learn why dinner was so late and found her newly-acquired Irish cook wrestling with the pepper-pot.

"Which one are we going to have dinner, Bridget?" she asked.
"Shure, ma'am, an' it's meself can't say. I don't know how long it'll be takin' me to get all this pepper in the thing through the little holes in the top!"

The Mail Carrier's Christmas

A CHILDREN'S STORY

By G. P. Clarke

It was the day before Christmas and Ned Radburn was on his usual Christmas route, his cutter heavily laden with Christmas mail. It had been quite stormy the night before and now, the sifting snow, driven by a strong north-west wind, was rapidly filling in the roadway between the banks, where the snow had been piled high by the big snow plough, which had gone through a few hours before.

Because of the high banks it was impossible for Ned to reach a good many of the mail boxes on his route. His hands became nearly frozen with too frequent removal of his heavy driving mitts. Then he tried keeping them on, but they caused him to fumble awkwardly with the mail.
At one box he dropped a gay-colored postal card. The wind carried it along the road. Ned went after it, but he was stiff with cold, and found it impossible to hurry. It was only a postal card—he was tempted to let it go. But he remembered he was in charge of His Majesty's mail —not even a postal card must be lost—and so the card was eventually retrieved.

About three parts of the long, cold trip was over—only another five miles to go—but would he be able to make it? Making headway was increasingly difficult. Snow was falling heavily now and his poor old grey mare was getting almost spent.

"Come on, Nell—get up, old girl. Just a few more miles to go, and then it's oats and a warm stable for you."

Encouraged by her master's voice, the faithful beast stepped out courageously for another half mile. Then she began to stumble and flounder. Ned could see she was past coaxing—she was done.
Stepping out of the cutter, he went to the horse's head. Patting her and talking to her gently, he helped her along the road to the next farmhouse. Ned did not know the people who lived at this farm, they had moved in just a few months previously, but he certainly hoped they were kindly folk, because he would have to ask them if he might rest his horse.

He found the owner in the barn. He was a young farmer, Amos Todd by name.

"Rest your horse? Sure thing.
I guess it's pretty heavy going today." Young Todd was looking the mare over as he spoke. "Just about played out, isn't she? She looks to me as if it's more than an hour's rest she'll need. Tell you what—you'd best leave her in my stable and finish up your round with one of my spare horses."

"Why, thanks—that's mighty good of you—I hadn't thought of anything like that."
"Don't see any other way out of it myself," rejoined Amos.
"You look just about all in yourself," he added. "You had better come up to the house with me—I know the wife will be glad to make you a cup of hot tea."

Ned did not need any second bidding—for, now the horse was being cared for, he found himself almost overcome with fatigue.

At the house he found Mrs.
Todd just as friendly as her husband, and as she set about getting him some hot tea, he put in the time getting thawed out and making friends with the two Todd boys, who were quite pleased to have a stranger to talk to. The little lads were wild with excitement, because Daddy was just getting ready to set up the Christmas tree.

"Do your little boys have a Christmas tree?" asked Ernie, the elder of the two boys.

"My boys?" echoed the mail carrier, "well, no—no, they don't."

"Do they hang up their stockings?" asked little Frank.

"No, I'm afraid they don't do that, either," answered Ned.

"Well, I wouldn't want to live at your house," said Frankie, in disgust.

"What do you have for Christmas dinner?" he added as if it were the last hope.

"Dinner—dinner," said Ned, in rather a dazed way, "well, now, I really don't know—I hadn't thought about it."

"I hadn't thought about it?"
echoed Ernie in amazement.

"Say, what do you have at your house?"

"Not very much, I'm afraid—you see, I—I live alone."

"Mummy," cried Ernie, as his mother appeared with a well-laden tray. "He says he lives alone. People don't do that—not on Christmas Day?"

Ned looked somewhat embarrassed but endeavored to explain to Mrs. Todd that he was a bachelor. Last Christmas he had not been alone, but into last winter his father and brother had been killed in an automobile accident. His mother, who was an invalid, had died of shock a few weeks later. Now there was only himself left.

An hour went by and Ned, warmed and heartened by the hospitality of his kind friends, set out once again to finish his round with the sturdy horse

Amos Todd lent him, and which he promised to bring back next day—Christmas Day.

True to his promise, Ned was back again next day with the borrowed horse and to take his own horse back.

"Well, well! Back already, are you?" said Amos. "Guess you'll find your grey mare looking a little different this morning."
Nell whinnied as she heard her master's voice. Ned patted the faithful beast lovingly, as he reached for her harness.

"What's the hurry?" asked Amos Todd. "No mail to go out today, you know. This is Christmas Day. I am just about through with my chores here. You might as well come up to the house with me for a bit. I guess the wife would like to greet you."

Nothing loath, Ned followed Amos to the house. Even the outside of it had a warming look to him—in spite of the snow-drifts piled high around it.

"Merry Christmas, Mr. Mailman, merry Christmas!" cried both little boys before he was hardly inside the house.

"Come on, quick—to the dining room," cried Ernie. "Your place at the table is right beside the Christmas tree."

"Yes, and Santa Claus must have known you would be here, because there are two—three parcels for you on the tree," chimed in little Frank. "I know—
'cos I read the names," he added, importantly.

Ned was getting more bewildered every minute and looked to Mrs. Todd for an explanation.
Mrs. Todd was smiling a little nervously. "I'm afraid we have taken you rather by surprise," she said, "but we thought—if you wouldn't mind—we would like to have you spend your Christmas with us."

LOCKIE - TINDALL
NUPTIALS HELD

Chrysanthemums and ferns formed a pretty setting in Stouffville United church on Saturday afternoon, when the marriage was solemnized of Vera Gladys, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jess Tindall of Stouffville, and Irving Munro Lockie, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Lockie of Stouffville. Rev. L. Atkinson officiated.

The wedding music was played by Miss Ann Lehman, and during the signing of the register Miss Alma Baker sang, "O Promise Me."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr.
Bert Tindall, looked lovely in a gown of white satin and lace, fashioned on princess lines, with lace stand-up collar at the back and a row of tiny covered buttons extending from the neckline down the front to the hem. The skirt fell into a short train at the back. She wore a shoulder veil of bridal net, with a coronet of lace, and carried a bouquet of Talliesman roses and lilies-of-the-valley. Her only ornament was a gold locket, the gift of the groom.

Miss Lena Lockie, sister of the groom, as maid of honor, was gowned in baby pink tulle with lace jacket and gloves, with matching turban hat and nose veil. She carried a mixed bouquet of mauve mums, pink carnations and Talliesman roses.

Miss Margaret Simpson was bridesmaid. Her gown of turquoise tulle tulle was fashioned similarly, with off-the-face hat and nose veil to match. Her flowers were of the same—a mixed bouquet.

Mr. Lorrie Tindall, brother of the bride, acted as best man, and the ushers were Mr. Reuben Tindall, cousin of the bride, and Mr. Bert Lockie, brother of the groom.

After the ceremony the bride and groom received their guests in the basement of the church, where about 80 sat down to the wedding dinner. They were assisted by the bride's mother, wearing a gown of black sheer with sequin trimming and a corsage of Ophelia roses and lilies-of-the-valley. The groom's mother also assisted, wearing navy blue crepe with cut velvet, and a corsage of roses and lilies-of-the-valley.

The bride's gifts to the maid of honor and bridesmaid were French beaded evening purses, and the groom's gifts to the best man and ushers were leather bill-folds.

Amid showers of confetti, Mr. and Mrs. Lockie left later on a short motor trip to points north, the bride travelling in a wine crepe dress, black coat with sable trimming and black accessories.

On their return they will live in Hamilton.

"This," writes F.B.C., "is a true anecdote, told me by the next neighbor's boy, who enlisted and served through the World War."

"I was doing my watch on the deck of an A. E. F. troopship carrying overseas a cargo of colored troops, slowly toward me and asked: 'Do you think we'll ever get to France, Mr. Officer?'"

"Certainly," I replied. "I have been over there and back four or five times already. Why do you ask a question like that?"

"Well, I don't know—I've been up here waiting now——and we are always right in the same place."

SCOTT COUNCIL NAMES
DAY FOR NOMINATIONS

The regular monthly meeting of Scott township council was held on Saturday afternoon, Nov. 6, all members being present.

MOUNT ALBERT NEAR MT. ALBERT SCHOOL HISTORY

The monthly meeting of the Mount Albert Women's Institute, held at the home of Mrs. Barnes was well attended. It was the annual grandmothers' meeting.

Mrs. Wm. Rear won the prize for the oldest grandmother present. Mrs. Geo. Price had charge of the interesting program. There was community singing by the grandmothers, of several old-time songs, also a demonstration showing how candles were made, by another grandmother.

Mrs. W. R. Steeper sang a solo and a good paper by Miss Hayes on the history of Mount Albert public school, from the first log school on the hill in the town, to the present one, north of the town. The names of the teachers, almost from the first, were given, and it proved most interesting. At the time the first school was built the land was given by Mr. Birchard, one of the first settlers here, and pictures of this family were also shown. Mount Albert was first named Birchard town.

Lunch was served and enjoyed at the close of the meeting.

The Young People's Union held their weekly meeting on Monday evening. A very interesting topic was taken by Helen Webster, and Mildred Dike gave a fine talk on China, which was illustrated with slides. Other items on the program consisted of a vocal duet by Karl Lees and Frank Brooks, a story by Allan Dixon, and a recitation by Edna Griffith.

Mrs. J. F. Burr and Miss Page, of Richmond Hill, were at the home of Mrs. W. R. Steeper on Thursday last week.

Mrs. R. Harman of Zephyr, Miss O. Burr and Miss M. Sanderson of Richmond Hill were visitors last week at the home of Miss E. Leek. Mrs. J. Cook, Misses Marian and Evelyn Cook and Mr. Bob Young of Woodbridge were guests of Mrs. D. Cook on Saturday last.

Miss Evelyn Bluck of Winnipeg is a visitor at the home of her aunt, the Misses Hayes.

Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Harmon of Parry Sound were callers in town last week with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Crowle motored to Kirkland Lake last week with Dr. Jas. Hamilton of New York State to visit Mr. and Mrs. McGuire.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Ross and Harry of Toronto were at the home of Mr. Ross' mother, Mrs. H. Ross, on Thursday last week.

Miss Gladys Wagg and Mr. John Rodgers of Stouffville were weekend visitors at the home of Mr. H. Leadbetter.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Stewart, accompanied by Mrs. H. Pearson, spent the weekend with friends at Midland.

The public school and United church Sunday school are holding a Christmas concert on the evening of Wednesday, Dec. 22, in the church.

Mr. Ben Harman has returned home from the west to spend the winter.

The officers of the Y.P.S. of the United church were installed at the Sunday evening service by Rev. R. V. Wilson as follows: President, Donald Stewart; vice-president, Len. Brown; secretary, Doris Draper; treasurer, Violet Smith; pianist, Miss Grose; convenors of the different committees — devotional, Gordon Harrison, Carl Lees; missionary, Helen Webster, Ruth Oldham; citizenship, Velma Thompson, Grace Harrison; literary, Beatrice Appleburg, Nora Wilson; social, Pauline Sinclair, Velma Johnson, Clarence Johnson.

The New Generation
American tourist (to Canadian Northwest Indian) — White man glad to see red man. White man hopes big chief is feeling tip top this morning.

Indian (calling) — Hey, Jake, come here and listen to this bozo; he's great.

Zephyr

The service at the United church next Sunday, Nov. 21, at 7:30 p.m., will be under the auspices of the W. M. S., when the special speaker will be the Rev. Dr. Grierson, who will tell of his experiences as a missionary in Korea. This will be a very interesting service and the choir will provide special music.

There was a good attendance at the United church last Sunday, when the topic of the sermon was "A revival in our midst." Rev. Mr. Murray made reference to the increased interest in the church amongst the young people and this was one of the most hopeful signs of the church, at least locally, he thought. A survey was made of the last few years of the response made by the young people to the claims of Christ and also what they had done for the church. This was encouraging to those who have helped in this work, Sunday-school teachers and Y. P. S. executive.

The Y. P. S. dramatic club are presenting the play "Deanna Dubbs" in the community hall on Nov. 26. This is a real live three-act play, put on by local talent,

Toronto Life-Savers Aid Search, Indians Find Body

The body of Thomas H. Laviolette, who was drowned here on Monday morning about 9 o'clock, was found at 11:20 a.m. yesterday by a group of four Indians from Georgian Island.

The life-saving crew, headed by Hillyard Lang, head of the Toronto life-saving station, had been dragging the lake day and night from the time of their arrival here at 4 p.m. on the day of the tragedy. The number of those voluntarily helping in the search was very great and their efforts are very commendable.

Game Warden Frank Lyons, the constables, Monte and Archie Shadwick, Carl Morton and Carl Charpentier, were among those who assisted the search party.

The body, which was found off the south end of Georgian Island, was brought to the surface by the Toronto Big Canoe, Arthur Sillaby, Bill Sillaby, and Clifford Big Canoe.

A party of some 20 men with ten boats had been organized in sweep formation by Game Warden Frank Lyons. The Indian residents of Georgian Island, who brought the body to the surface, were dragging alongside a boat manned by Game Warden Lyons, Carl Charpentier and Chiff. Noble.

The body was taken by Mr. Lyons' boat to a large cruiser, which rushed the body to Jackson's Point, where officials were waiting. The body was near the east end of Georgian Island about 100 yards from the shore.

Maurice McCue, his brother Bert, and Tyerson Snache played a very important role, throughout the search, the McCue brothers being the only eye-witnesses to the tragedy.

In dragging, the Indians used a very heavy chain, to which was fastened numerous small hooks. This method proved invaluable inasmuch as it could drop between the logs and stumps, etc., where the regular grappling irons and hooks found considerable difficulty in reaching.

Art Grew and Clarence Kemp, boat-builders at Jackson's Point, lent a large number of boats to assist the life-saving party.

The funeral will take place at Virginia, four miles east of here, on Friday morning.

The community was shocked on Monday to hear of the tragic death of Thos. H. Laviolette, local businessman and real estate agent. Mr. Laviolette had been out on the lake in his motor-boat and about 9:30 a.m. stood up to shoot at some ducks.

He was jerked backward and fell into the water. Weighted down with heavy clothing and long rubber boots, his body did not come to the surface.

Local men dragged the lake all day Monday and Tuesday, but didn't find the body until just before noon on Wednesday.

He is survived by his wife and four children, also three sisters, Mrs. Harry Kaiser, Jackson's Point, Mrs. D. Conway of Pickering, and Miss Meriel Laviolette of Montreal.

Keswick

Heartly congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Elmer King upon their marriage.

The L.O.B.A. is holding a hot fowl supper on Friday, Nov. 20, from 5:30 to 8 p.m., in the Belhaven community hall. The Lindsay boys' bugle band will provide an excellent variety program of elocution, violin solos, humorous songs, etc.

F. Rye has opened his new butcher shop.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Marritt spent Wednesday in the city with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. O. Cryderman are visiting Mrs. Cryderman's daughter, Mrs. Ross Falkner.

Mr. Smith has started ploughing on the Marritt farm.

and will provide much amusement and promises to be one of the best plays.

Mrs. R. Harman spent last week in Mount Albert visiting friends.

Mrs. E. Profit has purchased a house from H. Snowdon in the village.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Oxtoby called on her father, Mr. F. Corner, on Sunday. Mr. Corner is very ill with pneumonia.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Goodwin and Lois of Holland Landing had tea with Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Rynard on Sunday.

Some of the hunters have returned from hunting and report very good luck.

Mrs. Bartlett and family spent Sunday in Toronto.

Several carloads of ladies attended the Women's Institute convention in the Royal York hotel, Toronto, this week.

There is no charge for birth, death or marriage announcements in The Era. Engagement notices cost 50 cents.

Sutton West

The anniversary services of Sutton United church will be held on Sunday at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

The morning service will be conducted by the minister, Rev. N. S. Anderson, and the choir will present special music. In the evening, Rev. R. V. Wilson, B.A., B.D., of Mount Albert, will be the speaker and Queensville choir will take charge of the music.

On Monday evening a hot fowl supper will be served in the church hall.

Rev. Dr. A. A. Forbes, former Presbyterian minister here, visited in town one day last week.

Miss Bev. Robertson visited at her home here over the weekend.

Miss Grace Ward and Mr. Geo. Gall spent the weekend at the former's home.

Miss Janet Cameron left last week to spend the winter in Toronto.

Misses Ruth Cameron and Wanda White of Beaverton spent Saturday with Miss Elizabeth Noble.

Queensville

Queensville public school, school section No. 5 concert will be held on Monday, Dec. 20.

Miss Hazel Doane has been spending a few weeks in Toronto.

Terry Doane, who came third out of a class of 24 at the Hamilton musical festival last week, is to be congratulated.

A re-broadcast of the radio program which was presented last week and was a failure, will take place in Queensville United church next Sunday. Several of the young people will take the parts of the speakers in the original broadcast and will be under the direction of Stewart Beare of Newmarket, who will have loud speakers in the auditorium of the church.

The next meeting of the Queensville Women's Institute will be held at the home of Mrs. R. Cowles on Nov. 24. Roll call, verse on peace; current events, Mrs. Geo. Pearson; speaker, Mrs. Pim; lunch committee, Mrs. Micks, Mrs. Eyes, Mrs. Crowder.

Leslie Hadden, of Blackwater, has purchased English's chopping-mill here.

SCHOMBERG
CHAS. DAVIS HAS 94TH BIRTHDAY

A united service of remembrance was held in the United church on Thursday last, being the 19th anniversary of the cessation of the World War. The local veterans paraded to the service, conducted by the pastor, Rev. Mr. McMillan, with Rev. F. V. Abbott, rector of the Anglican church, as preacher.

Following the service the veterans led the parade to the cenotaph, where wreaths were laid and the Last Post sounded, concluding with "God Save the King."

On Thursday afternoon of last week the Women's Institute met in the club room for their regular meeting. Mrs. Shultz, the president, conducted the meeting. The program was arranged by Mrs. C. W. Marchant and Mrs. Lister. The special speaker, Mrs. Town of Whitby, gave an address on general W. I. topics, including peace.

Mrs. Marchant read the report of the district meeting. Refreshments were served at the conclusion.

Several A.Y.P.A. members attended a meeting of West York Local Council in All Saints' church, King, last Wednesday night.

Miss Lorna Davis of London spent the weekend at her home here.

Mrs. Hague and Miss Laurine Hague, also Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Crawford, of Kettleby, visited Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Davis on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Davis and family of Ridgeway spent Sunday with Mr. Davis' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Davis, it being the 94th birthday of Schomberg's grand old man, Mr. Chas. Davis.

Mrs. M. K. Dillane attended the bazaar and tea held on Saturday under the auspices of the Clementina Fossenden chapter of the I.O.D.E., in Toronto. She also assisted in pouring tea.

On Saturday afternoon of last week, Mrs. P. V. Abbott and Miss G. Amey representing the Anglican W.A., also Misses Florence Sutton and Lillian Foster, representing the A.Y.P.A., attended a meeting at the home of Miss Izard in Richmond Hill, to hear an address by Miss Inzell on her caravan mission work in western Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Marchant and family visited friends in Orangeville on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Ferguson were at home to their family on Sunday when a dinner party was held in the evening. The family are Mrs. Fred Evans, Toronto, Mrs. C. Marchant, Weston; Mrs. W. Malr, Thames Rd.; and Mrs. G. Lloyd, town, with their respective husbands and children.

Sandford

The community hall at Sandford was crowded to capacity last Wednesday when the Y. P. S. presented the play "The Red-headed Step-daughter." No one was disappointed in the play. Each one took his or her part well and from first to last the audience was held in rapt attention. There was lots of laughter and amusement. The costumes were pretty and the cast are to be congratulated on their acting, also those who coached them. They are open for engagements.

Nothing Like it
A young Canadian girl, resident of Kingston, Ontario, while visiting some friends in England, desired to send a cable home, and having written it out, handed it to a clerk in the cable office.

The clerk appeared to be rather worried about it, and, after consulting various reference books, said to the girl: "I can find Kingston-on-Hull and Kingston-on-Thames, but I cannot locate Kingston-on-Tario."

Once when Rowland Hill was making an appeal for charity, a note was handed to him asking if it would be right for a bankrupt to subscribe.

During his sermon Rowland Hill mentioned the fact and said that no person in Christian honesty could subscribe if he were a bankrupt; "but," he added, "I should advise you who are not insolvent not to pass the plate without giving, lest your neighbor should say, 'There goes the bankrupt!'"

"Don't you find writing a thankless job?"

"On the contrary, everything I write is returned to me with thanks."

GROUND LOST
MASONS TOLD

"War is a break-down of civil government," Leslie Blackwell, Toronto barrister and war veteran, told Tuscan lodge A. F. and A. M. last Thursday evening. The occasion was the annual veterans' night.

Worshipful Master Thomas Scott turned the meeting over to Wesley Brooks. The speaker was introduced by K. M. R. Silver, a former fellow student.

Following the address Rev. A. J. Patstone offered prayer and Jack Arlitt sounded the bugle calls for the two minutes of silence.

"We seem to be almost back to where we started," said Mr. Blackwell.

"In Canada, a country of (an million people, we have 800,000 people engaged in the business of government," he said. "Unless this question of government receives federal attention, this milestone will break the back of old Jack Canuck."

He urged an independent non-political civil service. "We are 75 years behind Britain in this matter," he said. "The result of a permanent civil service in Britain is stable government, including when the labor government was in office."

Mr. Blackwell urged that Canada "pull our share" in the Empire, and take a voice in the conduct of the Empire's foreign affairs.

HUNTERS SUCCESSFUL

Among the successful deer hunters who have returned are W. J. Patterson and L. B. Rose, who both got deer, R. C. Morrison, Harry Richardson and Leslie Hayton, who brought back one deer among them, Allan Bartholomew, Donald Blackwood, Shuron, Grant Nighswander, Harry Shaw, Stanley Armstrong and Tom Law, all of Ravenshoe, who got four deer for the party.

Veal Calves

Due to regular shipments each week from this market to the U.S.A., our trade here has been quite steady at attractive prices. Choice selling from $0.50 to $1.00, good $0.75 to $0.85, medium $0.60 to $0.70 and common $0.50 to $0.60, with boners $0.50 to $0.60.

Sheep and Lambs

Choice lambs have been selling from $7.75 to $8 with heavy lambs weighing 100 pounds and upwards at $1 per cwt., discount, buck lambs $1 per cwt., discount, and cull lambs priced between six and seven cents, light yearling sheep $5 to $5.50, light butchers sheep $3.50 to $4.50, heavy sheep $3 to $3.50 and cull sheep $2 to $2.50.

Hogs

Prices have fluctuated almost weekly of late so that quotations at times held good only for a day or two. However, no person cares to predict the future of the trade, which will depend largely on the bacon trade in Great Britain and to some extent on trade conditions on American markets. At time of writing, Nov. 10, hogs are selling on a basis of $0.10, $0.25 weighed off trucks, with some long haul hogs higher and $0 weighed off cars.

Grain

Since our last article, there has been quite a decline in the price of wheat. Evidently it won't low enough to interest buyers both

Hay

The demand for hay for the north country continues quite brisk; we are getting a lot of inquiries and shipping a number of cars. This is for No. 2 timothy and mixed alfalfa and timothy. The demand around Toronto is very quiet, but supplies are being delivered by truck at very low prices.

A few inquiries are coming from the United States for good second cut alfalfa.

A report comes to us that there is not nearly as much hay in the Ottawa Valley district as other years, and it has been very hard to get the farmers to sell hay, owing to weather conditions and endeavoring to get their fall work done. We expect hay to be offering much more freely in a week or so.

Straw

There is practically no demand for straw outside of the Royal Winter Fair, and their requirements have been taken care of at the present time.

Potatoes

The potato market continues very quiet, with prices running around 45c to 50c delivered Toronto.

Turnips

Turnip business also has been very quiet, but we look for a big improvement in the next two or three weeks.

Cattle

We are pleased to report that after two months of dull and listless trading (due to heavy shipments from western Canada) our market is beginning to show more action, and cattle showing quality and finish are in better demand, but unfortunately there are too many cattle shipped to market that should have been kept in the feed lots or stall fed until such times as they are fat enough to dress well. At time of writing choice heavy steers weighing from 1,200 to 1,300 pounds well finished are selling from $8.25 to $8.65 with balance of the heavy steers lacking finish really not wanted. Choice butchers steers are selling from $6.25 to $6.50 with some outstanding quality higher. Choice butchers heifers, which have been showing better finish than the steers, are selling at $6 to $6.50 with some fancy higher. Choice baby beefs have been selling at $9 to $9.50, good $8 to $8.50, with medium quality not popular at $0 to $7.50. Choice fat cows are selling around the four cent mark with a few light younger cows a little higher, balance of the killing cows range from $2.75 to $3.75. Canpers and cutters are numerous and selling from $1.75 to $2.50. Fat bulls have been selling from $3.25 to $4 with bologna bulls at $2.75 to $3.

Export trade with the U.S.A. has been rather quiet of late due to lower price levels and the $3 per cwt. duty now prevailing and which will remain in effect until Jan. 1. Up to Oct. 28 there has been shipped this year the following stock to American markets from Canada, 173,709 cattle, 11,018 dairy cattle, 97,254 calves and 63,290 hogs.

Stocks and Feeders

Shipments from western Canada are gradually declining and from information received this week the receipts from now on are likely to be light, but there will of course be some coming through each week. At time of writing choice feeding steers weighing 800 to 900 are selling from $5.25 to $5.65 depending on the flesh they carry. Good quality stocker steers are selling from $4.05 to $5, medium $4 to $4.50 and the balance from $3.25 to $3.75. Shipments of heavy western calves are pretty well over for this season, choice selling at $5.25 to $5.50, with some more fleshy light kinds for dressing purposes at $4 to $5.50.

Butter

During the month of October we had quite an active butter market, not only in Toronto but also over the entire dominion. During the last few days of September the British market was quite high with the result that 4,000 boxes of butter were exported to that country. Our market opened here in Toronto on the first at 27c for Ontario No. 1's and soon increased to 27½c. During the month of October the British market went as high as 154 shillings, which would net shippers 30½c Montreal. During the month 42,000 boxes were exported. This relieved the surplus of butter in Canada a great deal with the result that during the rest of the month butter gradually increased in value, until at the end we were up to 29c. We understand that some 15,000 more boxes of butter have been sold for export, so that we look for still higher prices in the butter market.

Eggs

The fresh egg market during the past month has been steadily advancing, particularly on grade A large, which has been in very light supply. Prices at the moment appear to be at, or almost, the peak for the season, with some gradual increase in production expected, along with a lighter consumer demand at present prices.

In the meantime storage eggs constitute the bulk of the trading and are moving out satisfactorily. Exports to Great Britain this season are materially heavier than a year ago, and with the stocks in storage at the first of November showing a shortage compared to last year of around 40,000 cases it appears possible that all storage stocks will be pretty well depleted by the end of the year, and so very materially help the fresh egg situation in January. At least, it does not appear probable that the very bad break in fresh egg prices last January, will be repeated this year.

Present prices delivered Toronto, cases returned, for fresh eggs, are as follows:

Grade A Large 40c
Grade A Medium 30c
Grade A Pullets 20c
Grade B 23c

here and abroad, as, since the first of this week, there has been a very strong tone, with prices advancing about 7c per bus. in Winnipeg. There is hardly enough of the western strong wheat to go around, and it is quite possible that we may see very high prices before the season is over.

On feed grains and feeds generally, the situation is rather mixed. By-product feeds such as bran, shorts, gluten feeds, hominy, distiller's grains, etc., have been exceedingly scarce and high in price. Plentiful supplies of American oats are available at the different bay ports and this has kept the price of oats down. Western shippers are now offering small quantities of both oats and barley at far more reasonable prices than were possible a month ago.

Carload prices delivered to Ontario points are running about as follows: South African white corn 84c per bus., South African yellow 80c per bus., Ontario kiln dried corn 88c per bus., standard No. 1 screenings $30 per ton, ground mill screenings $27 per ton, bran $26, shorts $28, middlings $30, linseed oilcake meal $38 per ton for 39%, cottonseed meal 41%, $32.50, soya bean oilcake meal 41%, $32.50.

Seeds

As mentioned in previous issues, the quality of all seeds

the rough according to quality. No. 1 graded seed will undoubtedly be very scarce for spring trade.

RED CLOVER—The small crop is now being threshed and marketed, but, although the quality is fair, the lots are very weedy and buyers are paying from $10 to $13 per bushel, in the rough, according to quality.

Here again, No. 1 graded seed will be very scarce, but being able to import fancy qualities of No. 1 seed will undoubtedly take care of the scarcity of our own domestic seed.

ALFALFA—The market for this is slightly weaker, with most of the best lots of early threshing, bought up, and buyers are paying around $9 to $12 per bushel, in the rough.

TIMOTHY—A large crop of this seed is being threshed, and prices are very low, with very
